UNDER FAISE PRETENCES

Harry Nelson of North End Accused of Obtaining Letters Containing Money Belonging to D. J.

Purdy and Nase & Son.

Harry Nelson, proprietor of a barber shop at the corner of Main and Elm streets, was arrested yesterday afternoon on the charge of obtaining under false pretenses on Monday, June 10, a letter for D. J. Purdy containing 40 and another of Wedsacks, June 13, addressed to P. Nase & Son, and also containing a considerable sum of money.

These letters, as previously reported, were received.

These letters, as previously reported, were received from Capt. Charles Brennan of the steamer May Queen, those for Mr. Purdy on Monday and those for Mr. Nase on Wednesday last. According to Capt. Brennan, a young man met him at the boat on Monday last and asked for letters addressed to D. J. Purdy. Thinking, of course, that the request was afthorized, two letters were delivered, and meeting Mr. Purdy a short time later the captain informed him of the fact. Mr. Purdy never received the letters, but, as Captain Brennan states, never told him of their failure to reach him, so when the May Queen arrived here but, as Captain Brennan states, never-told him of their failure to reach him, so when the May Queen arrived here on its next trip on Wednesday the same man appeared and asked for mail for P. Nase & Son. Another letter containing money was delivered. This also failed to reach its owner, and as soon as the captain was informed of the circumstances the mat-Hastings of the nouth end police force, who had been working on the case until yesterday with no strikingly apparent result.

When the May Queen arrived yes terday aftermoon he and Officer James Greer were on the wharf as usual, and as the boat drew into the berth, Capt. Brennan, who had been scanning the crowd from the pilot house, came to the gangway and called to Officer Greer to come on board, which he did, followed by a crowd, among which was Harry Nelson. When they reached the saloon the captain, who had noticed Nelson on the wharf, identified him positively as the man who had obtained the letters from him, and upon his accusation Neison was a once arrested by Officer Greer and Capt. Hastings, the latter taking him to the central police station, where ed his innocence, assuring Capt, Brennan that he must be mistakan. Leaving the saloon with the officers he passed Jarvis Purdy, son of the owner of the missing property, and turning to him said "They've charged me with the saloon of the country to him said "They've charged me with the saloon of the country those letters." To a survey of the saloon of to him said "They've charged me with stealing those letters." To a Sun reporter later Nelson again asserted his innocence and entire Ignorance of the affair, stating that he had only been at Indiantown twice this summer, and was not near the place on the days the crime was committed.

His friends in the north end are confident that Nelson had no complicity with the affair, and declare that an aifbi can be proved. They assert that on Monday, June 10, he was an intorested witness of the base ball game between the University of Maine and the Alerts, at which he remained until its conclusion, thereby making it impossible for him to be at the May Queen's what? when she arrived.
