Thomas Park, aged about 65, was found drowned in a pool near the rifle range yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock by James Speight.

When Mr. Speight made the sad discovery he was on his way to the range. When passing the pool he saw to his horror the sun shining on the face of a man. He at once ran to the range for assistance but the men there discredited his story and he was forced to return to the city.

Mr. Speight immediately notified Dr. Roberts, the coroner, and Sergt. Kilpatrick, who accompanied by Police Constable Covay, at once went to the scene of the fatality and took the body out of the pool.

When Dr. Roberts arrived the body was examined, a few keys, a pearl-handled pen knife and a small amount of money being found.

After the coroner had viewed the remains he gave Sergt. Kilpatrick permission to remove the body.

To this end the officer telephoned to James and Thomas Park, the sons of the deceased, who at once communicated with Undertaker Chamberlain with the result that the body was removed to Mr. Chamberlain's rooms, probably Fell in Pools.
