COMMENT FROM MONTH TO MONTH

The Canadian Army Medical Services in England and France have attracted widespread attention on account of the special investigation and report of Colonel Herbert A. Bruce, Toronto. Colonel Bruce sailed for England during the past summer, commissioned by the Canadian Government, or the Department of Militia, to make a thorough and searching investigation into all matters pertaining to the wounded soldier. Associated with him on a Medical Board were men of experience and ability, such as Lt.-Colonel Walter McKeown, Toronto; Lt.-Colonel Wallace A. Scott, Toronto; Lt.-Colonel Wilson, Niagara Falls; and Captain Hunter, Winnipeg.

Report has it that Surgeon-General Carleton Jones, C.M.G., Director-General of the Canadian Medical Military Services, is returning to Ottawa, but it is not announced whether he has been recalled or has resigned. Added to this comes the announcement that Sir William Osler, who has been Honorary Adviser in connection with Canadian hospitals abroad, has resigned owing to sympathy with General Jones.

From the quotations from the report of Colonel Bruce, printed in the public press, efficiency of conduct and operation of hospitals has not been commensurate with the undoubted surgical ability
