A Chat With Our Readers

We have heard many kindly comments on our September number. It was a little better than its immediate predecessor, and it is our purpose to make each issue of increasing interest and help to every reader. The letters from members of our staff now fighting the Empire's enemy in France were read by many with interest, and in this number we are publishing an additional lot. The fine page photograph of General Foch, the distinguished leader of the Allied armies, on the front cover was an appropriate introduction to the number and created interest amounting to enthusiasm. It has been truly said that the heart of Canada is in the war and there would appear to be none more ready to support it to the last than that great number of progressive westerners who constitute the readers of The Western Home Monthly.

It is hardly necessary to draw attention to the large number of the latest and best war illustrations published in each issue. They are selected for us at considerable cost, but we feel that these pictures with their titles present, in an attractive form, a summary of important features of the war and suit the requirements of busy people. Indeed to have followed the picture gallery of war is to be familiar with its leading events and the men who are playing the big part in it.

Every department of The Western Home Monthly has proved its worth and each has its own particular admirers. Many are enthusiastic about the correspondence pages, and the mail received for them alone during a month is surprisingly large. Mostly all our women readers, young and old, find instruction and interest in the fashion department, and as the winter months approach larger space will be given this popular feature. All the household departments fill a much appreciated space. They are The Woman and the Home, Household Suggestions, The Woman's Quiet Hour, The Young Woman and Her Problem, Sunday Reading, etc. The page conducted by Prof. W. F. Osborne for young men we would very specially commend. To read the professor's talk from month to month as he deals with matters of vital importance will prove a liberal education. His life work has been the training of young men and as an educator, speaker and writer he occupies a leading place among Canadians. The philosophy of things is succinctly dealt with in the philosopher's page, conducted
