CN safety promo

CLARKSON - Canadian National recently used four local children to emphasize the dangers of using the railway tracks and equipment as a summer playground.

on CN's line in the Port Credit-Clarkson area climbing on cars, running on bridges, riding bicycles along the right of way, etc.

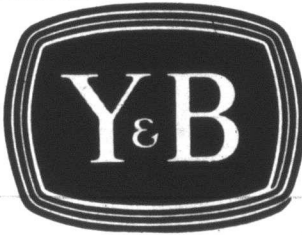

But it was all for a good cause. A montage of the children's dangerous activities was sent out to all the weekly newspapers in Ontario. Regional offices in the mountains and western Canada also requested copies. Canadian Press released another photo montage of the safety feature to newspapers across Canada.

Small-child activities were portrayed by Ian Anne, 6, and Peter Fallie, 3, (whose dad is a CN pr man) and old adventurous boys were depicted by Douglas and Ivid Smith, aged 11 and 10.

All the children live Calder Drive, Clarkson.
