

significance. That Book which God has made the monument of the great redemption, and where he has put his own perpetual Shekinah, do you choose it as the gymnasium where you may nourish a youth truly sublime ; the castle where, in a world of impiety and an age of peril, you may find entrenchment for your faith and protection for your principles ; the sanctuary at whose oracle you may find answers to your doubts, and light upon your path ; the spirit's home, whither your affections shall every day return, and where your character shall progressively ennoble into a conformity with such a royal residence."