MY LESSON STORY THIS WEEK.

 “MOTHER, mother, do please come and help me?” So little Susie Gray called out one bright summer morning. What do you think she wanted? Do you think she was in danger? Yes, she was feeling oh so angry with her little brother, because he had broken her dolly, and she had tried not to get cross and had failed, so she called to mother to come and help her to keep her temper. Mother could not keep back Susie’s angry tears, nor keep her little eyes from flashing, and when Susie found out that it was no use to ask mother to help her, she thought perhaps her big brother Jack could. But Jack could not do anything for her either, so Susie cuddled herself up in father’s arms, and asked him to please keep her, for she was such a naughty little girl, and every day she felt crosser and crosser. Father told his dear little daughter that he could not keep her from getting angry, and then poor little Susie was in great trouble, for she really wanted to be a good loving little girl. Then Susie thought she would ask Jesus to help her, and all at once she seemed to hear Jesus whisper, “I cannot help you, little Susie, but I will do it all for you if you will but give me your little life.” Then Susie said “Yes” to Jesus, and Jesus sent His Holy Spirit of Love into her heart, and our little friend was set free; day after day she found it so easy to be kind and gentle to her little brother because she trusted Jesus to keep her so, instead of trying to make herself good as she used to do. Trust first—try after you trust.

 MY QUESTIONS THIS WEEK.

1. How can I make my body strong if I want to run in a race?
2. Why should I want my body to be strong and pure?
3. What is the best kind of a crown to strive for?
4. What is the Golden Text?
