QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Miscellaneous.

DUTCH SETS AND TOP ONIONS.

"I had a package of top onions and Dutch sets, mixed, but could see little difference when I planted them. When I gathered them in the fall, I found some big, solid onions, which have kept perfectly until now, while others were in bunches made up of many little pieces, and had to be used right away or they would have spoiled. Was this because the latter were too deeply covered with soil, or was one kind from the top onions and the other from the Dutch sets?"

Ans.—The onions which produced a large number of small ones in the clump instead of a solid bulb are the top onions. The good bulbs are from the Dutch sets. Top onions are planted for use when green, and do not form large, solid bulbs. Bulblets are formed on the stalk above the ground, from which they get the name of top onions.

W. T. MACOUN.

A NUISANCE.

1. How far away should a hogpen, that keeps from 80 to 125 hogs during the summer season, be from a creamery or butter factory, so that the odor from hogpen will not affect factory?

2. Can you give the name of the Government Inspector for Cheese and Butter Factories in the County of Bruce, and his address, or the district which takes in Bruce County?

3. Can a company running a butter factory, run a hogpen in a community when the odor from it is annoying a number of people living around it, and is a danger to the health of those people? Ontario. A RATEPAYER.

Ans.—1. Pretty hard to say. Much would depend on the condition in which the swine were kept, and other matters. We would not care to risk them much closer than forty rods.

2. The creamery instructor for the district in which Bruce County is situated is M. Robertson, St. Mary's, Ont. The cheese instructor is Jas. Burgess, of Listowel, Ont.

3. If it can be fully established in evidence that the case is as serious as it is stated to be, the company can be prosecuted for maintaining a nuisance; or a writ might be issued against them, claiming an injunction against their continuing the obnoxious industry.

THE SPRUCE GALL-LOUSE.

I am sending you a sample of the diseased branches of our little evergreen trees. Do you know what is the cause, and whether there is any cure? The trees look sickly, and are covered with those little black knots. A. W.

Ans.—This is the spruce gall-louse (Chermes abietis). It has been the cause of considerable anxiety among growers of ornamental spruces for some years, extending its range year by year, though, in the older sections, the parasites are apparently keeping it in check. It undoubtedly renders the trees very unsightly, and gives them an unhealthy appearance, but we know of no actual instance where it has killed trees. The young issue from the cone-like galls about the middle of August, and crawl about on the trees, where, later, eggs are laid, from which hatch young plant lice that remain on the twigs until the following spring. Their presence in the young buds of the spruces causes slight swellings at the base of the leaves. Each female of the May brood lays about 300 eggs, and the young from these cluster in the swellings begun by their mothers, where they soon cause the galls which later are so conspicuous. No treatment is possible upon forest trees, but upon hedges and ornamental specimen trees, good work has been done by spraying them at the times the young plant lice are exposed, and before they are enclosed in the galls, with a tobacco and soap wash, or with kerosene emulsion. The two seasons of the year when the young plant lice may be reached are in the latter part of August and in May. A good soap wash may be made by soaking ten pounds of tobacco leaves in enough hot water to cover them, then strain off the liquid and add two pounds of whale-oil soap. When dissolved, dilute to forty gallons of water. Two or three applications of this spray should be made at short intervals.

Could Not Sleep In The Dark.

Doctor Said Heart and Nerves Were Responsible.

There is many a man and woman tossing night after night upon a sleepless bed. Their eyes do not close in the sweet and refreshing repose that comes to those whose heart and nerves are right. Some constitutional disturbance, worry or disease has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system, that it cannot be quieted.

Mrs. Calvin Stark, Rosemore, Ont., writes:—"About two years ago I began to be troubled with a smothering sensation at night, when I would lie down. I got so bad I could not sleep in the dark, and would have to sit up and rub my limbs, they would become so numb. My doctor said my heart and nerves were responsible. I saw Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills advertised and got a box to try them. I took three boxes and can now lie down and sleep without the light burning and can rest well. I can recommend them highly to all nervous and run down women."
