parishioners and friends and the peal of the bells has been given by Mr. E. F. Whitby of Turo. At the corners of the tower are large statues of Sir Richard Grenville, Sir John Eliot and Bishop Trelawny and on the south side are carved niches in which will be placed other figures.

On behalf of those interested in the Wall Street, New York, noon services, which for six months in the year are held daily by the Rev. William Wilkinson, Mr. Henry Clews presented recently to the Rev. Dr. Maning a set of nine medals, which were cast on the occasion of the Hudson-Fulton celebration. Robert Fulton was buried in Trinity Churchyard, at the head of Wall Street, when the parish owed allegiance to the Church of England. Dr. Maning has appointed Mr. Wilkinson to deliver in person one of the sets to the Bishop of London. Mr. Wilkinson will D.V. leave New York for London on April 20th.

The Rev. E. A. Edgehill, of King's College, has been appointed Hulsean Lecturer for 1910-11. He is one of the most brilliant of the younger Cambridge theologians and is probably the youngest person—only just over thirty—ever selected to hold the position. He was educated at Eton and King's and besides taking two places in the first-class in the classical and theological triposes, he gain-

A striking tribute of respect was paid to the memory of the late Bishop of Edinburgh by the leaders of the two great Presbyterian communions. A meeting of the joint committee on the question of the proposed union of the Established and United Free Churches had been fixed to take place in Edinburgh at the same time as the Bishop's funeral. The members of this committee including many of the leading Scottish Presbyterians, unanimously resolved to put it off for an hour and they then attended the burial service in the Cathedral in a body.

On St. Matthias Day an interesting celebration took place at Dursley, in Gloucester, when a window, which has been placed in the church by Canon Bartlett, the rector and rural dean, was dedicated at Evensong. This thankoffering commemorates Canon Bartlett's 75th birthday, the jubilee year of his priesthood and his 10th year as rector of Dursley. Nearly all of the clergy of the deanery were present. Canon Bartlett was the schoolfellow of Lightfoot and Benson and he was present with others of their old school friends at the consecration of each of them according to their special desire.

Extensive improvements, including the erection of a rectory, parish house and a larger or entirely new church building are shortly to be made at All Saints', Baltimore. These improvements are made possible by the gift, entirely unexpected and unsolicited, of a sum of money offered to the rector by a wealthy Churchman of that city for this special purpose. The amount of money given will be announced later. The proposed improvements will probably all be made on the present church property which is considered to be one of the best sites in the city of Baltimore.

The Archbishop of York has conferred the Prebendal stall and Residuary Canonry of York Master, vacant by the death of the late Bishop of Hull upon the Rev. Albert Darrell Tupper-Carey, M.A., rector of Towertoft. The new canon was a contemporary of the Archbishop of York at Oxford. He was ordained in 1890 and for eight years was one of the curates of Leeds' parish church. Mr. Tupper-Carey will act as Canon Missioner of the diocese and will devote himself specially to the work of parochial and foreign missions. He will also be able to give his whole time to the minister and to the work of the Church in the diocese.

The Governors of Wellington College, Berks, have appointed a layman, Mr. William Wydmar Vaughan, to be the new Headmaster in succession to Dr. Pollock, the Bishop-designate of Norwich. Mr. Vaughan is at present the Headmaster of Giggleswick School, Settle, on the edge of the Yorkshire moors. He was educated at Rugby and New College, Oxford, and is a son of the late Mr. H. H. Vaughan, who preceded Professor Goldwin Smith in the Chair of Modern History at Oxford. From 1890 to 1904 he was an assistant master at Clifton College and in the latter year he was appointed to his present post. Mr. Vaughan was born in 1865.

Bell-ringers from all parts of the country assembled at Wokingham recently for the obsequies of the Rev. F. E. Robinson, for many years vicar of Drayton, and probably the best known campanologist in England. Master of the Oxford Diocesan Guild of Bell-ringers from its establishment, and a member of nearly thirty guilds and associations devoted to the art, Mr. Robinson rang his first peal in 1859. In 1905 he rang his thousandth peal at Drayton. His best achievements in this connection were a peal of 10,080 changes, rung in six hours all but two minutes, and in the same year (1888) a peal of 12,041 changes in seven hours twenty-six minutes.

In resolving to honour the name of Lord Justice Fitzgibbon by the erection of a statue to his memory in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, the Church of Ireland has taken a step that will be universally approved. The late Lord Justice was one of the greatest of her sons, and the gifts of rare eloquence, of great personal influence, of profound legal knowledge, that he possessed to a pre-eminently high degree, were ever used for her furtherance and her welfare. Chiefly through his influence the impasse that existed so long between the Church and the University on the Divinity School question was successfully overcome, and during the year preceding in the starting of the auxiliary fund his unrivalled advocacy and great powers of organization were readily placed at her disposal.

A further step towards the completion of Truro Cathedral has been reached with the delivery of the peal of ten bells which are to be placed in the Queen Alexandra Tower, specially designed for their accommodation. The cost of the bells and of hanging is £1,500, and the ten bells weigh nearly eight tons. The tenor bell, which weighs 35 cwt., and cost £220, was given by Mrs. Hawkins. A second was subscribed for by the children of the diocese, and a third was given anonymously. The other donors were the late Major Parkyn, Mr. J. C. Daubuz, Mrs. Moore, Mr. John James, Mr. S. M. Robins, and the Bolitho family. A set of hand bells has been given by past and present pupils of Probosc School. It is hoped that the bells will be fixed and tested in time to be rung at the dedication of the western owners, which will take place in May.

On leaving Belmont, Durham, lately, the Rev. J. and Mrs. Slim have received many valuable and useful presents, as tokens of the great esteem with which they have been held by the parishioners during the seven and half years they have worked among them. The members of the Mothers' Meeting presented to Mrs. Slim a beautiful silver cake-basket, and to Mr. Slim a pair of gold cuff links. The Sunday School gave Mr. Slim a gelatine duplicator, for reproducing notices, &c., and the superintendant a beautiful fretwork newspaper-holder made by himself. The Boy Scouts, of whom Mr. Slim was hon. chaplain, a framed photo of the members, and two other framed views. The presents from the parishioners in general were a silver communion set, a silver tea service, with silver hot water jug, and a purse containing five pounds.

The death of the Rev. E. G. Sandford, formerly Archdeacon of Exeter and Presenter of the Cathedral, took place lately at Exmouth. Mr. Sandford was one of the best known of the West County clergymen and was a friend and former pupil of Dr. Temple, who, on his appointment to the See of Exeter, invited Mr. Sandford to be his Domestic Chaplain. In 1877 he was appointed Archdeacon and a Canon Residuary of Exeter from which he retired last year. It is an open secret that when Dr. Temple became the Bishop of London, Archdeacon Sandford's name was submitted together with that of Dr. Billings, for the vacant suffragan-bishopric of Stepney, but Dr. Billings was chosen. The Archdeacon was an ardent educationalist and took a prominent part in the campaign in opposition to the Education Bills of the last Parliament. He was the author of an intimate Life of Archbishop Temple.
