BRITISH WORKMEN DEFENDING HOMES

Will Crooks, Noted Old Land Labor Leader, On Question of the War

THE DUTY OF MANKIND

A Whitechapel Analysis of Prussian Kultur and Terrorism

(By Will Crooks, M.P., British Labor Leader)

I am a Poplar man. I was born in Poplar in poverty in a little back-roomed house in 1852. As a lad, I was apprenticed near by to a cooper. Nearly thirty years ago the working men of Poplar chose me for my first public office, as member of the board of trustees. I live in Poplar to-day.

Poplar is part of the great working class quarter of East London, which starts at Whitechapel and stretches to Canning Town, the largest solely industrial quarter in the world. Here we have no leisured class, no middle class, none but working men and the tradesmen who supply them. East London is a natural reservoir for casual and shifting labor. In pre-war days advertisements of factories to let here added as an attraction the words 'abundant supplies of casual labor to be had.'

Houses Well Filled

Casual labor means low wages, and East London is the home of poverty. We have many families living in one or two rooms; few families have a whole house to themselves. Gough street, Poplar, where I live, is as good a street as is to be found within a radius of a mile. Yet I do not know a family save my own that has a whole house to itself, and I think I know every family in the street. The houses in Gough street are not large—two-story houses rented at thirteen shillings a week. But when thirteen shillings represents 33 per cent. of a working man's wages he cannot afford as much for rent.

Facts Before the War

We were strongly anti-war before the war with Germany began. We were willing to fight any man for it. In the war we were outspokenly pro-Boer.

We stood for peace, for liberty and for friendship among nations. On one occasion, on a public visit to Germany, I proposed the health of the Kaiser. We were not in any sense military. We laughed at the Allies and Berties of Piccadilly. We opposed in every way we could any man who sought to promote war or to do anything likely to provoke war.

Battle for Liberty

In the days of the Boer war we were pro-Boer because we thought that the liberty of the Boer was in danger. To-day we stand by our country because we know that the liberty of our people is threatened. Our people are being crushed in its conduct of the war against Germany.

I myself, the man of peace, have undertaken big recruiting campaigns. I have visited, lived among and encouraged the men in the trenches. I have taken the message of the men making the guns to the men using the guns, and coming back I have taken the message from the men in the trenches to those in the workshops.
