HUNDREDS OF SHIPS
DEPART AN ARRIVE AT ENGLISH PORTS

London, Feb. 14—While naval officials here express the belief that the submarine operations may continue at high tension for a couple of months, they show the utmost confidence in the ability of the navy to cope with the latest campaign with approximately the same success as the campaign against the U-boats in 1915.

An admiralty official showed to the Associated Press today the figures of arrivals and departures for yesterday at English ports, proving that a larger number of vessels entered and departed than on any day during the past six months. Taking a day at random during the period since the latest war zone was declared, out of 140 British arrivals and departures, only four vessels were sunk, and these figures, according to the official, give an excellent idea of the percentage of loss to vessels taking the risks.

In the English Channel, where British communications were most vital, the Admiralty official says, the losses have been routed through the Channel.

BRITISH TROOPS ARE SWEEPING FORWARD IN THE ANCRE REGION

London, Feb. 14—The hammering of the British guns and the advance of General Haig's troops against the enemy's defences north of the Ancre resulted in the capture today of a strong German point southeast of Grandcourt, according to the statement issued by the War Office tonight.

All evidence points to the fact that these unceasing attacks are eating the vitals out of the German lines in this region, not only leading to the pocketing of Serre, but demoralizing the German troops, who are given no rest, day or night. It is known the Germans are hurling all their available forces into this area. The British apparently have placed no obstacle to their arrival, but cautious war students are beginning to wonder whether they will ever depart.

Both the British and the French carried out successful raids during the day on the rest of the front Northeast of Arras, Haig's troops penetrated 250 yards into enemy's defences, reaching the third line. The German works were destroyed many troops killed and forty prisoners carried back. "Our casualties were very light," says the War Office statement.

One German, one British and one French machine constituted the days toll of destruction in aerial combats. Dunkirk was bombarded by German squadrons last night and this morning, but little damage was done. A few civilians were killed.
