CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the ACADIAN.—Last winter evenings I commenced to write up Wolfville. After writing some thirty or forty pages I came to where I must take up the geological formations. I thought I had them all right. The tris with its trap away to the north west. The new red sandstone and the aluvial to the north and west and the silurian to the south.

But upon reconsidering my diagnosis I am inclined to think I am mistaken. Is it possible that there is a strip or tongue of carboniferous running along the south of Wolfville and taking in where the College stands and then have we silurian to the south of that and then old primordial rocks? It would almost seem to me so.

As Wolfville appears at present to be full of scientific persons as tourists and otherwise, I wish that some of them would give me the information as to what the geological formations from the old post road in Wolfville to the top of the mountain south of the Gasperan river really are, as they strike me as peculiar and I do not know of any book that will give me the information that I desire.

E. J. CORWELL. Wolfville, July 21, 1894.

To the Editor of the ACADIAN.—Some evil disposed person has apparently made the attempt to poison the cows belonging to J. A. Elderkin, pasturing on the dike, by placing a quantity of oats covered with paris green, under the line fence of Albert Elderkin. They were in neat little piles in such a position that the cows could reach them. Fortunately the oats had too much paris green on them to look wholesome and they were found before any showings came to wash off the paris green, other wise the consequence might have been dreadful if the poison had got into the milk.

Mr Elderkin seems to have an insatiable enemy as a series of depredations have been committed upon his property during the last few years. Last fall he built a wire fence near the street and a few nights after it was all pulled up and thrown down. Then the notices effecting a reward were torn down as fast as put up. Then there are lambs stolen out of his pasture every year; also two of his sheep were sheared and the wool stolen and other devilry of a kindred nature.

"Ten cents it cost," sweet Mary cries; "My dress is just a treasure; I dyed it with the Diamond Dyes One day when I had leisure."

"If you mail this verse and notice and 20 cents in stamps or money to WILKES and RICHMOND CO., Montreal, you will receive our terms, complete new monthly family paper, for one year; also illustrated book on "How to make Mats and Rugs," and one package of Ink Powder, for making 16 ounces of best black ink. Mention this paper."

Missionary Jubilee.

The Presbyterian church in Nova Scotia is this year celebrating its mission, and jubilee, and fitting services are being held in the various churches throughout the province. Next Sunday evening Rev. J. K. Fraser, who has been filling the pulpit of St. Andrew's church, in this town, for the past few Sabbaths with great acceptance, will deliver an address on the New Hebrides mission. Fifty years ago, Rev. Dr Geddie set sail for these islands in the Southern Pacific the pioneer missionary to that church abroad.

Rev. Mr Fraser is now pastor of the congregation from which went out the heroic Gordons, who gave their lives for the cause of the gospel in those islands. His grand father, Rev. Dr Kerr, was one of the originators of this missionary enterprise, and the work is thus one in which he is especially interested. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance of all those interested in missionary work generally and especially the mission to the New Hebrides, on next Sabbath evening.
