THE NEWSPAPER MAN

A lady sends the editor the following, but whether it is intended for insult or admiration is not easy to determine. The request to "print it" is here complied with. The verses were first published about 25 years ago.

He seldom is handsome or natty,
And has none of the charms of the dude;
Is oft more abstracted than chatty,
And sometimes unobscurely rude.

He courts us, then flirts us and grieves us,
As much as he possibly can;
He kisses us, loves us and leaves us,
This perfunctory newspaper man.

Our mothers won't have him come calling,
His no earthly good or "solid";
His morals (they say) are appalling,
His finances usually match.

He's reckless, reckless, uncaring,
Lives but for the hour, the day;
He's drowsy, drowsy, drowsy,
Not fit for a husband, they say.

But somehow we girls are forgiving,
Perhaps he but needs us the more
Because he goes wrong in the living
And knows the old world to the core.

So we pass up the dude and the schemer,
Who lead in society's van,
And cherish the thinker and dreamer
Enshrined in the newspaper man.

FUNERAL OF CECIL CRAIG

The funeral of Cecil Craig, who came to his death by drowning, was held on Thursday afternoon at the Primitive Baptist church at Middle Simonds. The services were conducted by Rev. J. M. Mallory, assisted by Rev. H. V. Bragdon and Rev. J. A. Woodworth. The pall bearers were Van Underhill, Glenn Underhill, Ernest Ebbett and Randolph Hatfield. Interment was made in church cemetery.

Deceased was twenty-two years of age and unmarried and leaves to mourn one sister, Mrs. Russell Paget, of Mars Hill and two brothers, Samuel of Montana and Andrew of Fort-Fairfield. Also one half-sister, Mrs. Hedley Belyea of St. John and two half-brothers: Rudd of Coldstream and J. E. of Millinocket. Seldom has the community been stirred to the depths of sympathy as was manifested both in the untiring search for the body and the crowd that attended the funeral showing in no small degree the high esteem in which the young man was held by his young companions, and all who knew him.

Our heart felt sympathy and prayers go out to and for the sad ones who are left to mourn.—Contributed.

BASE BALL TOMORROW

On Monday evening the Hartland Homebrews played a game at Centreville and met disaster in a score of 14-6. The Hartland team scored well in the first innings and had the game well in hand, but a few costly errors gave the Centreville boys their opportunity which they took full advantage of. A game was arranged between Hartland and Bath for last evening but the shower prevented.

Tomorrow evening at 5.30 there will be a game between Centreville and Hartland on the Hartland diamond, when it is expected a real effort will be put forth to regain their laurels.

Connolly, knocking the roof to pieces and making a hole in the roof. Inmates of the house were slightly shocked. A tree back of Frank Day's residence, now struck from The Observer office, was struck. Both telephone systems suffered severely but the lines were immediately repaired.
