Clerk of the Peace, Huron.

Next to the monkey, the crow has the most deviltry to spare. They are born very wild, but can be tamed as easy as the goat can, but a tame crow is actually worse than a sore thumb. If there is anything about the frome that they can't get into, it is because the thing isn't big enough. I would rather watch a district school than watch one tame crow. Crowslive on what they can steal, and they will steal anything that isn't tied down. They are fond of meat vituals, and are first to hold an injust over a departed horse or a still sheep. They are a fine bird to hunt, but hard one to kill; they can see you two miles first, and will smell a gun right through the side of a mountain. They are not songators, although they have i good voice to cultivate, but what they dising they seem to understand thoroughly long practice makes them perfect. The crow is a tough bird, and can stand the theat like a black-smith, and the cold like a stone wall. They build their nest amon a tree, and lay twice, and both eggs woulh hatch out if they were laid in a snow bank There aint no such thing as stopping reasure crow. Crows are very lengthy,

Josh Billings on the Crow-

"Now then, my children," said a speaker to a Sabbath school, "what does a man want when he goes a fishing?" "A bize, answered a shrill voice, to the utter confusion of the speaker.

OR TO RENT. LARGEST In greatice makes them perfect. The crow is a tough bird, and can stand the heat like a black-smith, and the cold like a stone wall. They build their next among a tree, and lay twice, and both eggs would hatch out if they were laid in a snow bank. There aint no such thing as stopping a young crow. Crows are very lengthy, I believe they live always, I never knew one to die a natural death, and don't be lieve they know how. They are always thin in flesh, and are like an India rubber shoe, poor inside and out. They are not considered fine eating, altho' I have read somewhere of boiled crow, but still I never heard of the same man hankering for boiled crow more than once. This essay on the crow is copied from mature, and if it is true I aint to blame for it, nature made the crow, I didn't, if I had, I would have made her more honester, and just tough mough to make soup of.
