We learn that Rev. John Jamiesen was met near San Francisco by Mr. A. Meldrum, and occupied the pulpit of Rev. Dr. Scott's church in that city morning and evening. He spent over a week in San Francisco, and he and his wife were treated with great kindness by Christian friends there. He was then on his way to take the steamer for Formosa where he is about to enter upon his duties as a missionary. The Star's mean fling at J. R. Miller's application to the Legislature to be admitted to practice, upon his passing the usual examination prescribed by the rules of the law society, was a small bit of business. Mr. Miller has a perfect right to avail himself of a law made for Tories as well as Grits. Some of the Star man's advisers need something more than an act of the Legislature to help them along in their legal course.

now. I was, Mr. Editor, at St. Charles, Eustache, Grande Burle, Navy Island, Fighting Island and Point Pelee, from 24th December, 1837, until 24th March, 1838. Six fights, or operations in three months, got wounded and half starved lying on bare ground in barns, stables and out houses most of the time. But then I was a regular, and thought nothing of it, and did not get a potatoe patch, or a quarter dollar for it, and not indeed look for it, as I only did my duty. But if the country would feel grateful enough all present to use every effort to increase tention will oblige.

The Literary Society met in the rooms on Saturday, and a spirited debate on the question of "Annexation" was engagin. R. Reynolds and H. Vidal spoke in favor of the movement, and were opposative of the movement of the favor of the movement, and were opposed E. N. Lewis and C. Ross. The latter were awarded the victory. The question of the benefits of trades unions is being discussed by members of the so-
