Hoes, spades, forks, &c., not now to be used, should be carefully cleaned, oiled and stacked or put away in a dry place, and so arranged that when wanted any one could be obtained without having to overhaul the whole lot.

BISMARCK'S HOME.—The home of Prince Bismarck, instead of being a spacious palace, is a plain edifice—one of the plainest in Wilhelm Straas—and the man who answers the door wears no livery, nor any sign of his master's rank. The interior is equally suggestive in its sturdy contempt of luxury. In the Prince's study are an iron couch and an iron safe; the furniture is meagre, massive, and without ornament. His writing materials are on a gigantic scale, and his pencils enormous.

All political correspondence and confidential public papers connected with the official life of the late Lord Dalhousie are to be selected and placed in a locked box by themselves, sealed up and deposited in the family charter-room at Panmure, and not to be opened until the year 1890; and all correspondence with public men is to be arranged and similarly deposited.

THE CHICAGO BOULEVARD.—Chicago is setting about the task of entrenching herself against future conflagrations with a vigor and liberality worthy of the great interests at stake. One of the latest propositions is in favor of a fire park or boulevard, to divide the city and form a boundary or bulwark against sweeping conflagrations. The proposed boulevard would be 500 feet in width, running from the lake shore at Polk street westward across the entire city. The space is to be filled with trees and tastefully laid out with drives and walks. Besides its value as a defence against fire, this boulevard would be a highly ornamental and healthful feature of the city. It would cost an enormous amount of money, for every foot of space in that part of the city is valuable, and rapidly becoming more so, but Chicago is thoroughly aroused and will submit to almost any expense that will aid in securing her against a repetition of the terrible scathings she has already undergone.

The merits of the International Transportation Association—Hon. C. Wilson, Provincial President—are being advocated. It is proposed to establish the system of cheap freight between the Western States and the seaboard, and restore to the former the trade with the United Kingdom, which it has been steadily and rapidly losing since 1862 by competition with the Provinces bordering on the Baltic, Adriatic and the Black Seas. The object of the Association is not to interfere with the existing lines of communication, but to devise additional ways by which the export of breadstuffs may be largely increased. It is proposed to make of Montreal a market for the cotton and tobacco which is produced in Upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys, and it is intended to lay down European imports at Chicago from Liverpool, more cheaply than they can be transported from New York to that city.
