Commander Cameron's Death.

LONDON, March 28.—The coroner's jury inquiring into the death of Commander Verney Lovett Cameron, the famous African traveler, by falling from his horse on Monday near Southbury, have found that the commander had sprained his wrist and was therefore unable to control his horse when the animal became fractious. The verdict of the jury gives the immediate cause of his death as concussion of the brain.

This Should Suit Uncle Sam.

LONDON, March 28.—The Attorney-General, Sir Charles Russell, will introduce into the House of Commons to-morrow a bill providing for the proper enforcement of the Bering Sea provisions. There is no question of a new modus vivendi, and it is understood that the bill will not be opposed.

Through the efforts of Ambassador Bayard, the small differences between England and the United States respecting the extent of the closed zone, will likely be adjusted on the basis of the 42nd parallel.

Discussions Between German Political Leaders.

BERLIN, March 28.—It is formally announced that Chancellor Von Caprivi will take no part in the discussion in the Reichstag of the proposed programme of finance reform, but will leave the advocacy of that project to Dr. Miquel and others. The announcement has created a sensation in press and political circles, where it is regarded as the first public manifestation of a deep-rooted dissension between the Chancellor and Dr. Miquel.

The First Step.

LONDON, March 28.—Referring to the budget announcements of the Canadian Finance Minister, the Times says: The first step in the policy of tariff reform cannot fail to produce the most important results. It remains to be seen how far the Conservative party can hold together during the delicate movement of changing their ground. The protectionist supporters of the Government may not prove amenable to discipline.

Dillon vs. Healey.

DUBLIN, March 28.—Another eventful meeting of the shareholders of the Freeman's Journal was held to-day. Mr. John Dillon denounced Timothy Healey's scheme of guaranteed dividends, characterizing it as unfair, unbusinesslike, and not altogether honest or honorable, and declared that this was the last day he would ever serve as a director. Mr. Healey retorted with equal warmth and vehemence, and vigorously denounced Mr. Dillon's calumnious and barefaced meddlings in the board as the cause of all the difficulties with which they were confronted.

Kossuth's Funeral.

TURIN, March 28.—The funeral services over the remains of Louis Kossuth were held in the Evangelical Church to-day. The city was crowded with sightseers and the streets presented a most remarkable appearance, owing to the immense number of Hungarians, in full national costume. The streets through which the funeral procession passed were lined by the municipal guards, and on all sides were to be seen mourning emblems and crepe-draped flags.

The Coffin Inside the Church.

The coffin inside the church rested upon a handsome catafalque and was covered with flowers. Near the catafalque were the sons of Kossuth, his sister and his nephews.

After the simple ceremonies the coffin was placed upon a funeral car, drawn by four horses, and the procession moved slowly towards the railroad station. The special train bearing the body of Kossuth back to his native land left at 1 p.m.

A Tattooed Man.

BERLIN, March 29.—A young conscript was arrested Tuesday in Erfurt immediately after passing the physical examination. The examining physician found that the young man's body was tattooed with social democratic phrases such as "Down with Tyrants," "Resist Oppressors." Some of the mottoes were regarded as insulting to the Emperor.

Kossuth's Funeral Train.

VERONA, March 29.—The special train conveying the body of Louis Kossuth arrived here this morning. It was met by the mayor and a large body of municipal authorities, and a large crowd of citizens surrounded the railroad station. The mayor made a speech eulogizing the dead patriot, which was replied to by Louis and Francis Kossuth, both of whom expressed their heartfelt thanks for the honors paid to the memory of their father. The crowd cheered for Hungary and Italy, and the train proceeded on its journey.

Modern Idol Worship.

BERLIN, March 29.—The suppression of the Volks Zeitung Muehlhausen for publishing an article headed "Modern Idol Worship," concerning the monument to the Emperor, has stirred the Radical editors to bitter protest. The Vossische Zeitung, the most moderate of Radical dailies, expresses the deepest regret that the Government should retard thus the reconciliation of the annexed provinces to the empire. Herr Neft, ex-editor of Der Sozialist, has been sentenced to six months' imprisonment for inciting class hatred.

COXEY'S COMBINATION.

The Army Tramp Over a Rough Road.

And Camp at Salem, Ohio—Columbiana the Next Halting Place.

GARFIELD, Ohio, March 28.—Coxey's army traveled over the miles of the road after leaving Alliance this morning. The tramp of yesterday was so hard on the citizens that many left for Salem, to-night's camping-place, on passing freight trains. At Beloit the army stopped half an hour for lunch and marched direct to Salem.

SALEM, O., March 28.—Camp Anna L. Diggs, the fourth night bivouack of the Coxey brigade, was established on the Hampton circus lot, East Salem, at 2:30 this afternoon. When nearing Salem about 30 citizens of the commonwealth who had gone ahead by freight train joined them.

Just after the army had formed the customary circle, a penetrating wind carrying snow began to blow from the north. The Coxey brigade, the troops were quartered in two halls secured by local sympathizers. Therefore only the headquarters' tent was raised.

A few new recruits were enlisted at this point. Acting Adjutant Kirkland stated the records showed twenty. Enough rations to do for one day were donated by sympathetic citizens. At 7:30 a public meeting was held in How's Hall. It was crowded by 1,200 people, who applauded Marshal Browne frequently. General order No. 6, issued before the meeting, announces that camp Trenton will be established at Columbiana to-morrow.

St. Louis, March 28.—Forty-three miners out of work, recruits for Coxey's army, arrived at the union depot to-night over the Wabash road from Pittsburg, Kan. James McGrath, a mine boss, is in command of the detachment. They have paid their way and every man has a railroad ticket good to Pittsburg, Pa. Two other detachments will follow.

"Gen." Coxey arrived here in a blinding snowstorm this morning. He was much chagrined to learn that his horses had been sold yesterday afternoon. He expected to realize $1,000 from the sale, but the animals went for $450. He left Chicago to-night to join his army at Salem.

A CANADIAN RECRUIT.

CHICAGO, March 28.—Coxey gained a new recruit while here. Dr. J. A. McLeay, of Watford, Ont., who brought Coxey's horses declared that he had been converted by the "general," and that he would join the army. Coxey made him surgeon-general on the spot and Dr. McLeay will attend to the physical needs of the army of the Commonwealth during the march to Washington.

CLEVELAND DOES IT.

Votes the Seigniorage Bill Passed by the Senate—His Reasons.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—President Cleveland has vetoed the Seigniorage Bill. He reviews the financial condition of the country, and says the recovery being so well under way nothing should be done to check convalescence. The present perplexities and embarrassments of the Secretary of the Treasury ought not to be augmented by devolving upon him the execution of a law so uncertain and confused. He closes by urging the desirability of granting to the Secretary of the Treasury better power than now exists to issue bonds and to protect the gold reserve. If this could be done he thinks the bullion seigniorage now in the Treasury could be safely coined.

A DYING CONFESSION.

Stole Crown Regalia and Jewels—A Ruried Treasure.

LONDON, March 29.—A soldier who was engaged in Burma in 1885, recently when dying in London confessed that himself and a comrade named White had committed burglary in King Theobald's palace in Mandalay and had looted the crown regalia, including many jewels of immense value. Fearing detection they buried their haul outside the palace grounds. White was a pensioner residing in Southampton. The Indian Office guaranteed not to punish him, and he confessed that the foregoing story was true. White is now on his way to India, traveling at the Government's expense. He has great confidence in his ability to discover the treasure. The Government has promised White 10 per cent. of whatever he discovers up to 100,000 rupees and 5 per cent. of anything beyond that amount.

A Terrible Practice.

NEW YORK, March 29.—"The injection of morphia into the arms of store girls to give them temporary strength is a new and rapidly growing evil with which we have to contend," said Mrs. Louis Vanderpoef, the president of the King's county Women's Christian Temperance Union, at the annual convention in Brooklyn yesterday. The announcement made by Mrs. Vanderpoef of the spread of the morphia habit among shop girls seemed to surprise the delegates. They decided to make an active crusade in all the stores of Brooklyn.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 29.—A petition is being circulated here by women asking Congress to impeach Col. Breckinridge. Among the signers are Mrs. Cassius M. Clay, widow of Lincoln's minister to Russia; Mrs. Wm. Cassius Goddow, widow of Hayes's minister to Belgium; Miss Laura Clay, champion of women's rights in Kentucky; Mrs. James B. Clay, jun., cousin and aunt of Col. Breckinridge's first wife, and others. They bitterly denounce Breckinridge, and say if Congress will listen to them he will not misrepresent Kentucky any longer.

The Opposition on "A Wild Goose Chase."

Mr. Balfour's Pharmacy Bill Passed the Committee Stage—The Assessment Act Discussed.

[Special to the ADVERTISER.] PARLIAMENT BUILDING, TORONTO, March 28.—Mr. McCall (Eglin) began a somewhat extensive discussion this afternoon in moving for a return respecting the action of certain license commissioners in St. Thomas. He charged that one of them, Mr. O'Donoghue, was owner of a licensed hotel, and that the three commissioners had refused to give J. G. Nunn a license on political grounds. His intention seemed to be to create the impression that the Government grants licenses for the purpose of gaining prestige.

Mr. Harcourt showed very clearly how unfounded were these allegations. Mr. O'Donoghue, while owner of a licensed house prior to his appointment as a commissioner, had transferred the property to his wife before entering upon the duty of the office. In regard to the charge of partisan action respecting Nunn, Mr. Harcourt stated that a license was actually issued to Nunn, who personally had the document transferred to another man. Mr. Harcourt then read two letters from St. Thomas Conservatives which placed Nunn in an unenviable light. The first was from the owner of the hotel which had been leased to Nunn. It stated that the latter was not a proper person to run a well-appointed hotel, and that if the commissioners had been instrumental in bringing about the transfer their action was commendable. The second letter contained the remark that Nunn was "a general all-round deadbeat and scoundrel."

Mr. Barr (Dufferin) moved for a return showing the apportionment or payment of the Government grant to public school trustees, but subsequently withdrew his motion. Mr. Bishop asked for an "order of the House for a return showing (1) the salaries of all county treasurers, and (2) the total amount of all fees or other emoluments received by the treasurers by reason of their office." Mr. Wood wanted "county clerk" added, but Mr. Bishop would only consent to the addition of "city treasurers." The House went into committee on Mr. Balfour's bill to amend the Pharmacy Act, and it was reported upon without amendment.

THE EVENING SESSION. The Assessment Act was discussed during the evening session. Mr. Waters' suggestion for a simplification as contained in a bill which proposed to free from taxation all personal property and the imposition of such duties on the net incomes of all professional and business men over $700, was the immediate occasion of the debate.

Mr. Meredith attacked the existing Assessment Act. The only reason that the law was tolerated was because not enforced. If the people were taxed up to anything like the limit permitted by the law there would, he said, be a rebellion among the ratepayers of every municipality. Mr. Hardy thought it would be inadvisable to enter into such an extensive reconstruction of the Assessment Act at the concluding session of Parliament as fore-shadowed by the bill.

Mr. Waters consistently withdrew the bill, but predicted that the next Legislature would pass a much more radical measure. Mr. White's bill, providing for certain exemptions from seizure on farm necessities, was withdrawn. Mr. Meredith asked when the redistribution measure would be placed before the House, and Mr. McCall replied early next week. The House adjourned at 11 p.m.

WHEAT AND THE WEATHER.

Big Bulge in the Chicago Grain Market.

Prices Go Up as the Mercury Drops Down—A Jump of Three Cents and a Scramble Among the Shorts to Cover.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 28.—There was a sensational and rapid advance of 3 cents in wheat to-day, due wholly to the anxiety of the shorts, who feared further damage to the crop by the cold wave scheduled by the signers of the bill to-night.

The weather map this evening was not reassuring to the bears. There were snow turning into rains in some parts of the west and north and rains in others. In the far Northwest there was an area of low temperature, and it was pointing toward the wheat country. All doubt of its course was removed when the Government weather bureau indicated that the cold wave was on its way.

The opening of the market was commonplace enough, with prices a trifle higher than they were at the close last night. They dragged along for about half an hour, fluctuating 1-16 cent at a time, with no warning of the approaching bulge. It was a few minutes after 10 o'clock, when some small buying orders appeared in the pit. Bids to fill these orders met with no response in the shape of offerings.

Then the large speculators and room traders who were on the bear side awoke to the fact that they were in danger, and broke into the pit and frantically endeavored to buy. Their efforts simply had the effect of advancing prices without bringing out any wheat. From 58 1/2 cents to 59 1/2 cents the price of May was advanced before any purchases beyond a few 5,000 lots could be made.

The outsiders then came in. Commission houses who have been complaining of lack of business, found enough of it, so much so that they were obliged to press brokers into the service. Stop loss orders were reached, and passed without being filled. Many of them were filled at 1/2 and some at 3/4 of a cent from the point which they were made. The values continued to advance under the persistent buying until they were fully 3 cents over yesterday's final figures.

Then the demand having been satisfied, matters quieted down, and some recession took place, but the tone was strong up to the close, which was 1/2 cent under the high point. The amount of short wheat that was covered to-day possibly foots up to 10,000, 000 bushels, but those who are familiar with the trade laugh at the claim heard in certain quarters that the shorts were all run in on the day's bulge. It would take a week of steady buying to liquidate such a terrific short interest this market has developed as a result of six months trading in the May option.

The bulge to-day was accompanied by one feature which is especially disquieting. The commission houses were full of country buying orders for the first time since the wheat turned cold. The previous absence of such orders had much to do with the skepticism felt on 'Change as to the extent of damage the growing winter wheat plant. The appearance of country business to-day gave a new direction to thought and had an important bearing on the course of the market.

EIGHT HOURS A DAY.

An English M. P. Tries It Successfully in His Big Works.

The Men Work Cheerfully—The Government Asked to Adopt It.

LONDON, March 29.—Wm. Mather, M.P. for Gorton division of Lancashire, and the senior member of the firm of Mather & Pratt (Salford iron works), has made a report of the experience of his firm in the first year's experiment of giving its employees an eight hour day instead of nine hours, without any reduction of wages. Mr. Mather, whose works employ a large number of hands, reports that the experiment has proved in every respect a complete success. The output of the works has been greater than ever before without an increase of expense, despite reduction of hours.

The 1,200 hands employed in the works have worked cheerfully in double shifts during times of pressure upon the works, due to large orders, but they have never been paid, nor have they expected overtime, the reduction of regular hours and retention of regular wages offsetting that. Converts to the eight hour system, Mr. Mather says, have invariably been permanently won over. Mr. Mather has furnished the Government with full details of the working of the experiment in the Salford iron works, and recommends its adoption tentatively in the Government arsenals, dockyards and other public works.

The Pall Mall Gazette urges a trial of the plan in every factory in the kingdom, but deprecates the application of coercion in its adoption. The success of Mr. Mather's experiment, it says, is due to a feeling of mutual goodwill, without which that or any other plan would have failed.

The Globe says the fact that Mr. Mather has not found it necessary to enlarge his force of employees shows that adoption of an eight hour system does not increase the area of employment, and consequently falsifies the prophecies of labor agitators and politicians in sympathy with them. The Star and other afternoon papers also discuss the question of Mr. Mather's experience.

Graham Gets a Verdict for $500 Against Delaware Township.

For Damages Received Through Being Thrown Out of His Elg—Other Cases Dealt With.

Wednesday Afternoon.

Court resumed at 1:30 and sat until 6:45, when the evidence in the case of Graham vs. Delaware township was all in and the addresses of counsel and judge were completed. About fifteen witnesses were examined. Physicians who had attended the plaintiff described the nature of his injuries, and expressed the opinion that Graham would not have the proper use of his arm for a year to come. A civil engineer was examined for the defense in respect to the road, while the township also had on the stand Reeves Elson, of London township, and Gilmore, of North Dorchester, to testify that the highway was in as good condition as the average country road. Mr. John McKeown, a councillor from Delaware, said he had done what he considered right for the township, as he thought it his duty to look after the interests of his constituents. On cross-examination witness admitted that he had a list of jurors in his possession for two or three days before the trial. This gave counsel for plaintiff ground for some sharp remarks.

When the evidence was finished Mr. Ouler addressed the jury for half an hour, giving a clear and concise review of the facts as stated by the witnesses.

Mr. E. Meredith followed for the plaintiff, after which the judge briefly instructed the jury and submitted the following questions: 1. Was there any neglect on the part of the township to keep the road in proper repair? 2. If there was such negligence, was it the consummate cause of the accident and injuries? 3. Might the plaintiff, by the exercise of ordinary care, have avoided the accident? 4. If the plaintiff is entitled to recover damages, what amount?

The jury then retired and an adjournment was made till 8 o'clock, when they brought in a verdict, finding the township guilty of negligence in not making the road the same as before the washout of 1885 and placing the damages at $500.

NOTES.

The grand jury visited the asylum this afternoon.

Thursday Morning.

BENJ. FISHER ON TRIAL. The court room was crowded with spectators when the court opened at 10 o'clock this morning. The only case taken up was that of Benjamin Fisher, a well-known resident of Mount Brydges, who is charged with having robbed the postoffice at that place, the particulars of which have already been published. It took some time before a jury was selected suitable to both sides, several being challenged. Colin Macdonnell, Q.C., of St. Thomas, is acting for the crown, and Messrs. McEvoy and Wilson for the defense.

Fred Pearce, assistant, and son of Postmaster Pearce, described the postoffice to the court in a very clear manner. He also told how Fisher, accompanied by Henry Clay, had come to the postoffice after the robbery, bringing with him the box and stating that it had been found in the shed adjoining the Baptist Church.

Thomas Pearce, the postmaster, was also examined, but gave no new evidence.

O'Connor vs. Couch, action for $1,000 damages for false arrest at Ingersoll, has been settled out of court.

The grand jury inspected the jail this morning and appeared satisfied with the condition in which everything was found. Justice Meredith has entered judgment according to the verdict in the Graham case with costs.

The cases of the Bank of Commerce against the Aymer Furniture Company and Commerce vs. Frost have been settled between the parties.
