LOST TWO TOES

Wm. Bell Meets With an Accident at the Rolling Mills.

William Bell, of 71 Bathurst street, was taken to Victoria Hospital in the ambulance shortly before 2 o'clock this to his left foot that will be painful for some time, as well as causing him the loss of a couple of toes.

Bell met with his injury at the London Rolling Mills, where he went to Fresh work this morning for the first time. About half-past 1 o'clock he was working in the mills, handling some heavy boiler plate, when a large piece of it fell on his left foot. He had a narrow what he sustained was painful enough. The ambulance was called at once, and at the hospital it was found that the steel had been heavy enough to cut off two of his toes.

> TRAINS RUNNING WELL. The let-up in the weather during the chester. last 24 hours has meant much to the railways, all of which are taking every advantage of it. Passenger trains were running well today, none of the express trains being more than in tour and a half behind time, while the local trains were close to the schedule. The morning train on the L., H. and B. got through to London without difficulty, and the train north from the city did not suffer any delay on account of the snow. The Stratford line was also open.
