in after years, and assisted in the capture of the Schooner 'Anne' during the troubles of 1837-8. He also formed one of the expedition to Pelee Island, March 3rd, 1838, from whence the regulars and militia after a smart action drove the "Patriot Army" (otherwise "Brigands," as they are described on the old monument at Amberstburg.) Soon after the rebellion Andrew Kemp entered the Engineer Department. David Kemp died in 1842, leaving a large number of descendants. His son Andrew removed to Kingston in 1848, and retired from the Department in 1869, being then Clerk of Works. He died in 1887 in his 87th year.

(The notes from the reminiscences of Andrew Kemp were taken by H. G. Goodfellow and the abrupt break is thus accounted for. When Mr. Kemp found that his grandson was taking notes he stopped suddenly and would talk no more. The patriotism of the family was again shown in the case of a grandson, R. W. Goodfellow, who went with the first contingent to South Africa and gave his life at Paardeberg, Feb. 18th, 1900.—J. C.)
