

CHICAGO MARKET.

GRAIN CURRENT DOWNTWARDS— PROVISIONS KEEP ADVANCING.

Chicago, July 11.

This morning's sales opened in such a way as to augur for the market another day of decline in grain and advance in provisions. For days now these opposite currents have continued, the upward tendency of provisions, however, being a stronger movement than the downward one in grain. Wheat being the great staple produce gives, to its prices, tone to the whole transactions. Thus it is that a declining wheat market has a depressing effect on market frequenters, even when as to-day and the last two or three days, provisions have been on the rise. Wheat it is conjectured must go lower yet and the fact at Toledo that Ohio shippers who sold wheat are buying it back again this morning corroborates these conjectures. At Paris and Liverpool, wheat cabled as unchanged. Unsteadiness due to Government reports is being counteracted by continued good weather reports. The liveliest deals in the early part of the day, were in September wheat at which time an upward turn took place, prices registering $73\frac{1}{2}$ as against $72\frac{1}{2}$ this morning and yesterday close 73 . In pork there was some important selling, and it was thought that pork was a sale for a turn. Character of to-day's market thus resembles yesterday's pretty closely.
