

CHAPTER XII.

Dinner at the Traveller's Club. Armaments in aid of the Spanish American cause. Dinner at Baron Fagel's, Ambassador from the Netherlands. Prizes taken by the Spanish Americans, not admitted into English ports. Interview with Lord Castlereagh on the Slave Trade. Official Notes on that subject—and Parliamentary Addresses. 206

CHAPTER XIII.

Number of American Vessels in British Ports. Dinner at the Chancellor of the Exchequer's. Opening of Parliament—an early session called on account of the disturbed state of the country. Levee at Carlton House. Fête at the Spanish Ambassador's—the Horse Guards called out. Duty on Tobacco, Snuff and Hops. Dinner at Mr. Colquhoun's. Interview on official subjects with Lord Castlereagh. England consents to the Emperor of Russia as Umpire under the Disputed Article of the Treaty of Ghent..... 228

CHAPTER XIV.

Death of the Duke of Kent. Death of George the Third. Solemnities and Ceremonies connected with the Demise of the Crown. The Prince Regent ascends the Throne. Dissolution of Parliament determined upon. State of things between the King and Princess of Wales. Interview with Lord Castlereagh—Cato Street Conspiracy. Dinner at the Traveller's Club. Dinner at Mr. Stratford Canning's. Measures of Parliament under the disturbed state of the country. Dinner at Sir Edmund Antrobus's; at Mr. Holland's.... 243

CHAPTER XV.

Dinner at the Marquis of Lansdowne's. Interview with Earl Bathurst on the subject of presents to the American Indians. Funeral of