

redundant populations. They are the rightful patrimony of the English people, the ample appanage which God and Nature have set aside in the new world for those whose lot has assigned to them but insufficient portions in the old."

JOSEPH NELSON.

