THE MACKENZIE MEMORIAL EULOGY.

How inestimable is an honest man! His price is above rubies. He is the keystone in the mighty superstructure of society. He is the strength of every great financial institution. Society is a heap of sand, and government a gilded swindle without honest men. Oh, how Alexander Mackenzie loved Canada! And if he could speak to us to-day with lips unsealed it would be to urge us to fidelity in all that would tend to develop her resources and enhance her glory. Methinks I hear the grand old patriot sending back a shout from the everlasting hills bearing the message: "Defend Canada from her enemies; be true to her interests; lay yourselves upon the altar of her service; preserve the fair heritage which God has given you; rest not until her brow is wreathed with purity, her loins girded with righteousness, her feet unshackled, holding in her right hand the volume of eternal truth and its laws written on her heart." Thou grand old defender of thy country's liberties, farewell!
