"The principal ore bodies developed in the Porcupine district have been found on the periphery of the quartz porphyry, and in the adjacent rocks."

The latest report of the Ontario bureau of mines declares that the intrusions of quartz porphyry at different parts of Tasdale township mave in some way influenced the deposition of location of the good. This is proved by the fact that the three big producers in Porcupine, the Holiminger Consolicated, MicIntyre, Porcupine, and Doine manes, have all large intrusions.

It was started 25 years ago by H. S. Firestone, and since then has grown to an industry that employs 16,000 people. The move of the Firestone Company is believed here to be the forerunner of a great expansion in Canada of the big rubber industries.
