The children are back in school again and proud parents will watch their progress with anxiety, for many dangers lie in the path of the young boy and girl. Hence its extension to other "void spaces" suitable for promenading. The old French "esponande" was defined by Cotgrave as "a planing, leveling, evening of ways," from Latin "explanare," to smooth or fatten out, when the English word "explain" and "explanation."

In a letter from Carlyle to Abraham Hayward in that year occurs this passage: "When you have time to write answer, pray pack up the quarteries along with it; send your famulus into Fleat-street and he will see a Chelsea omnibus; the cad will bring it me for sixpence within an hour."
