CAN KEEP PARK, SAYS NOBLE CITY WON'T SELL LEASEHOLD

Meanwhile Mr. Eckardt is Waiting for Board of Control to Make an Offer.

There are no further developments in the matter of Victoria Park's purchase, but on the return of the mayor, it is stated that no time will be lost in getting down to business with Mr. Eckardt.

"I have sent the mayor a letter confirming my offer of last Monday, but have had no reply beyond an acknowledgment of its receipt," said Mr. Eckardt last night. He admitted that the offer had to do with concessions on Scott-street property, but would make nothing further, as he considered it was for the mayor or board of control to hand out information.

As to whether he would be satisfied to retain the property, Mr. Eckardt's cheerful rejoinder was that he would give the city a chance to show whether it thought the property cheap at the price he had paid for it.

Ald. Noble says he understands that what Mr. Eckardt wants is the right to purchase from the city the land on which the warehouse stands. Two years only of the 21 years' lease granted have expired. Ald. Noble, while of opinion that the city should sell rather than lease its property, remarked that he thought Mr. Eckardt would be allowed to keep his park land.

CHLOROFORM FOR KITTEN THAT FELL INTO LIVING TOMB

New York, June 18.—Entombed alive for three days a small black and white kitten appealed for succor. It had fallen from the 25-foot wall at the rear of Public School No. 4, at 409 Third-avenue, in an attempt to escape several small boys, and went to the bottom of an area that is less than six inches wide.

In vain did scores of persons invent means by which the little animal might be brought from its tomb, and yesterday afternoon an agent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals lowered a sponge soaked with chloroform, and by rubbing it against the nose of the kitten snuffed out its life.

The board of health is now interested in devising a method for getting the body of Tim from between the walls, and this the neighborhood insists upon, even if a part of the stone wall has to be removed.

Enormous Waste Of Human Life

Ave-Stricken by Calamities, We Overlook Daily Tragedies.

As a people we are appalled by the terrible loss of life in such catastrophes as the outpouring of Vesuvius or the destruction of San Francisco. But we scarcely give a thought to the enormous waste of life that goes on all about us every day.

Everywhere, among rich and poor, young life, full of capability, full of an eager desire for fulfillment, is being starved into death, stunted into moral and physical deformity by the lack of nutritious, digestible food.

These deaths, these deformities could be avoided. Clean living and good food are the secret of health, happiness and a full development of physical and mental strength.

We know of no other food that so richly endows the human body with health and vitality as does Malta-Vita, the perfect malted whole wheat food. This is because Malta-Vita is not only so nutritious, but so easily digested that every one of its life-giving elements is taken up by the body. It builds muscles, refreshes the brain, makes rich red blood and charges the whole body with energy.

Malta-Vita is the whole wheat, of the best white wheat, cooked and steamed, freely mixed with pure barley malt extract, then rolled into wafer flakes and baked crisp and brown. The malt extract, a powerful digestive agent, converts the starch of the wheat into maltose or malt sugar, a most valuable food and so easily digested that it does not distress even the weakest stomach.

Malta-Vita is the most healthful food in the world and there is no other so good to eat. All grocers, now 10 cents.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Etiquet.

Soup should be eaten with dessert spoon, and always taken from the sides, not the tip of the spoon. Bread should not be broken into soup or gravy. Never take a second helping of soup.

Bread should be buttered while lying on one's plate, never when held in the hand. Break off a small piece at a time, butter it and put it into the mouth piece by piece with the fingers.

Cream cake or anything of that nature should be eaten with a fork, never bitten. Pastry should be broken and eaten with a fork, to touch it with a knife is an insult to the pie. Peas and beans require the fork only as do raw oysters and fish. Green corn should be eaten from the cob, but it must be held with one hand only.

Asparagus if served on bread or toast eaten from the thumb and finger, but if served with a sauce the fork only is used. Celery, cress, olives and radishes are eaten of course from the fingers, the salt used being laid upon the side of the plate, not upon the table cloth. Spoons are sometimes used with firm puddings, but forks are better style.

Note.—The editor of this department will always be pleased to answer any questions on the subject.

Mrs. D.—This question was overlooked last week. Please accept my apologies. Theoretically speaking the bride's family pays for all the carriages excepting the one which drives the bridegroom and best man to the church and which takes the bride and bridegroom away after the ceremony, but it is often considered allowable for the bridegroom to send a carriage for the ushers and also for the bridesmaids. Unless your hostess has a guest it is not necessary to leave more than one card, she may have one or more daughters receiving. If she has a visitor leave one also for her. A lady never leaves her own card for the men of the house, or for men visitors.

Dainty Underskirts.

Underskirts are always an important feature at this season of the year, and the craze for striped material—which is on the decline as far as millinery is concerned—may be said to be at the apex of its popularity as regards petticoats. These are carried out in white silk, with a black satin stripe, or in white and colors, and are invariably trimmed with black Chantilly lace caught up with bows of ribbon.

White taffeta petticoats adorned with black and white net flounces are considered the correct wear nowadays for all smart occasions, and Carrick-macross applique lace, the foundation consisting of black net, is a charming fancy reserved, however, for those who have ample means at their disposal.

Lingerie underskirts are, of course, very much under consideration just now, and those who can afford it are having them mounted over silk, on the contention that an ordinary lingerie petticoat becomes crumpled and chafes the skin after the first period of wearing it. Detachable lingerie flounces are, besides, applied to underskirts of washing silk, the flounce being frequently threaded at the top with colored ribbon thru straps of embroidery.

Some simple lingerie petticoats for morning wear are made of the favorite broderie Anglaise, and are innocent of any supplementary trills. These are very economical from the laundry point of view, as they are not nearly so difficult to "get up" as the many frilled ones.

The latest method of securing the perfect fit of the Princess petticoat is said to be by making a seam down the middle of the front and easing away all unnecessary fullness so as to assume a perfect silhouette. These petticoats have graduated frills from hem to knee of lace or silk edged with narrow chine ribbon, the lowest frill narrow about five inches deep and the top one an inch and a half. Of course the flare must be as generous as possible in a petticoat which boasts no underflounce.

A Delicious Dessert.

Take one-half a package each of raspberry and pineapple jelly powder. Dissolve each separately in half a pint of boiling water. Put in separate dishes and set aside to cool. When set place in alternate layers in a glass dish, putting sliced bananas between each layer. Set on ice until ready to use. Serve with whipped cream. This dessert is simple to make, and can be prepared hours before serving, if necessary. It is delicious on a hot day.

Opportunities of the West.

An interesting article on "The Opulent Opportunities of the West," by Miss Nanno C. Hughes is found in the current number of "Echoes," the official organ of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire. Miss Hughes speaks of the opportunities in the west and was accompanied on her trip by her sister, Mrs. Charles O'Connor, and Miss Lola Hughes of Ottawa.

Women's Institutes.

The superintendent of Farmers' and Women's Institutes report a large increase in the membership of the Women's Institutes. For the year ending May 1 the membership was 10,239, compared with 7018 last year. Halton County leads with a membership of 608. Peel is second with 541, and North Middlesex is third with 328.

Colonization by Women.

London, June 18.—(C.A.P.)—At the conference this afternoon on colonization by educated women, Mrs. Fitzgibbon said the policy of the National Council of Women of Canada on the subject was in accord with the policy of the Dominion government. They were willing to co-operate in a needed Imperial scheme to equalize the sexes.

Mrs. Joyce cited many instances of women educated women married in Canada. Others spoke of other colonies. A resolution favoring a co-operative plan was adopted.

The Long Black Glove.

It sounds like the name of a blood and thunder novel. But the long black glove is nothing but a fad, but what a fad!

The black glove cast its shadow upon the lap of fashion six years ago, when women were rolling up their shirt-sleeves during their games.

It wasn't long before everyone in the Great fortunes—millions of dollars—have been made in the publishing business. Far greater fortunes are awaiting the making—more readily, of course, by those who have learned the lesson in the making of fortunes before.

Opportunities to share in them seldom come. The same opportunity never comes twice, for "the mill won't grind with the water that has passed."

An opportunity is here now for a few. Such an opportunity will not come again in Canada in many decades.

To-morrow in these columns you will read of the most remarkable and successful man in the publishing history of the world—in the House of Lords to-day—started with brains as his capital eighteen years ago.

The next day you will be shown your opportunity.

A day afterwards you will be too late.

smart set, and some of us who do our own washing, began rolling up our shirt sleeves. Early this spring someone with one eye to comfort and another eye to business, conceived the idea of cutting off the sleeves at the elbow.

This fad struck hard. And here is where the tale of the black glove begins.

No one dared to appear upon the street early in the spring with arms bare to the elbow. White gloves were too dressy and colored gloves too conspicuous. There was nothing left but the elbow-length black glove.

There isn't a city of fashion in the country that hasn't had a black glove famine. Black kid and black silk were alike gobbled up. Shop counters were emptied. Wholesale houses were sold out. The glove factories could not produce enough to supply the demand.

Some women, rather than be behind the style, bought short gloves and wore them in alternate layers in a glass dish, putting sliced bananas between each layer. Set on ice until ready to use. Serve with whipped cream. This dessert is simple to make, and can be prepared hours before serving, if necessary. It is delicious on a hot day.

The black glove has us in its clutches. You're not in fashion unless you wear them. Take care of those elbows. Rub them with olive oil. Bleach them with lemon juice. Soak them in warm soda. It makes the flesh dark to lean upon.

ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME

But This Production Has the Element of Tragedy, Not Comedy.

Chief Justice Meredith was engaged yesterday morning in defining what, in legal phraseology, may properly be called a "comfortable home." In the will of the late Mr. Manshard, a farmer living near the Town of Brookville, was inserted a provision that his farm property, valued at $4000, with buildings worth $2000, together with a personalty of $7500, should be divided equally between Mrs. Manshard, the widow, and her stepdaughter, Elva May Sturgeon. Embodied in the will was the provision that the widow should have a "comfortable home" with the daughter. For some time family disagreements have been much in evidence, culminating in open rupture, and with a view to arriving at a solution of the difficulty, Mrs. Manshard locked the whole of the house and stable, precipitating the present action.

Chief Justice Meredith yesterday suggested if there were two homes that each occupy one, and in the case of the stable the widow be allowed the use of it. The chief justice finally referred the whole matter to the local master at Brookville, with the understanding that the widow be given a home as far as possible on a par with her former station.

Toronto Taxes for 1906.

The city treasurer requests ratepayers who own properties in different parts of the city, and agents who have charge of estates, to send lists to him not later than the 20th inst. in order that tax bills may be furnished accordingly.

Broken Sleep—Tired Next Morning.

Sleep not only rests, but builds up the body. Cut down the hours of sleep, and you cut down health in the same proportion. Rebuilding then ceases, nerves go to smash, you grow tired, weak and wretched.

To restore sleep you must get more bodily strength, more nutritious blood, healthier nerves. Ferrozone solves the whole problem, makes you sleep soundly, gives endurance, vim, ambition. No more morning weakness—instead the fire of youth will run in your veins, supplying abundance of energy and vigor. Witchery expresses the instant effect of Ferrozone; try it.

MUSICIANS OF THE BACKWOOD

Artist Kubelick Prefers Them to Town Dwellers.

Herr Kubelick arrived at Liverpool recently by the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain from Montreal, having completed what he described as his most successful tour. It began at New York on Nov. 20, and realized $250,000, excluding $16000 raised at Seattle on behalf of San Francisco victims, and another marvellous concert given at Chicago.

"I put the greatest faith in diet," he said. "My meals are plain and light, and I scarcely touch any butcher's meat, rarely ever wine, but I like good cigars after a performance. Before a performance I do not touch food or stimulants for three hours."

"The tour involved a strenuous existence, but from New York right thru we had a special Pullman car, containing a delightful suite of rooms, and in this we lived for four months, never staying at an hotel. The only trouble was the cooking. I had to change four cooks before I got the right one. They were negroes, and all had the same objectionable traits."

"The pleasantest single experience I had was with President Roosevelt," he continued. "I had the honor of giving a performance in the White House to an audience of about 200 persons, of whom the president was one."

"The president gave me autographed copies of his books, including 'The Rough Riders,' and these I shall always treasure. What struck me about the president was his nervous alertness, and his pronounced natural instinct for music, which I find also in a surprisingly marked degree among the audiences in the backwoods."

"In a little town, such, for instance, as Joplin, the people, though few have any trained knowledge of music, had the truest instincts and most sensitive artistic feelings I have perhaps ever met with."

"I attribute this to the fact that they are always living in direct touch with nature, while mentally and spiritually they are a simple, but far from ignorant, people."

"They formed a great contrast to many of the fashionable audiences in the cities, where art is largely a slave to fashion, and where there were many—oh, so very many people—trained in technical music, but with no soul and no instinct for beauty and its meaning. I loved those far western audiences, because, with their rugged surroundings, they were natural. Herr Kubelick gave 140 concerts during the tour, of which 110 were in the United States. He says he is going to take a short rest, and then go to Australia.
