The Opening Last Evening-A Hand some Building-Complete in Hvery Detail-London Contractors Excel Themselves-Seats 1,250.

Last evening the new Grand Opera House at St. Thomas was opened by the "Miss Frances of Yale" company, to a packed house. The theater has been erected on the old site, and has a ground floor entrance. While everything is not entirely complete, the house last evening presented a cosy and comfortable appearance. The hallway is decorated in a handsome manner. Electric lights placed at equal distances among the decorations of the wall, add beauty to the designer's work. The lower floor has a gradual slope, and has a seating capacity of The first balcony seats 350 persons, and will be as popular as the lower floor, excellent advantage being given from all parts to witness a performance. The upper gallery will seat 500, and also gives a splendid view of the stage from all parts. A separate entrance for the top gallery is a fea-

The latest and best properties and appliances have been provided, and no stage in Canada has such a good arrangement as the new Grand. scenery as shown last night elicited the most favorable comment. Several sets were put on. The stage is provided with fifteen complete sets besides all the neccessary side scenery. Two drop curtains will be used. The front curtain is a fire-proof one, the regular curtain not being completed. The stage is provided with a full set of traps, etc. The lighting is one of the features. Altogether it is certainly one of the best arranged theaters in the matter of lighting by electricity in the country, and reflects credit on the London Electric Company, of this city, who had entire charge of the work, under the capable supervision of Mr. Bert Hunt. The erection of the building was under Mr. John Purdom's effective management. He had complete control of the construction of the building, and sub-let the other contracts. As a result of his skill and good judgment, St. Thomas has a model theater. Every part of the building contains the most modern appliances, and Mr. Purdom has shown himself capable of erecting one of the finest structures of the kind in Canada. After the first act last evening Major

B. H. Rothwell was called upon for a speech. He thanked the large audience for turning out so strongly, and said he hoped the theater would please them, as every effort would be made to give them the best shows possible under the management of Mr. R. A. mon. second to any manager in Canada.

By Means of Gambling Devices and a Gambler's Experience.

Mr. John P. Quinn, the Converted American Gambler, in the City-His Novel Orusade Against the Evil-Evangelistic Work.

The fallacy of the belief that "chance" has any part in a game with professional gamblers was thoroughly exposed last evening at No. 152 Dundas street by John P. His temporary quarters present the appearance of an Itinerant museum, and it was a decided surprise to the audience assembled when Mr. Quinn prefaced his exhibition with an earnest prayer and brief address. The room is stocked with a variety of drop-case machines, the squeeze spindle, a weight machines, and other machines common at country fairs, all of which are proven to be, in the hands of a professional, perfectly safe-for the professional. A circular table covered with green baize attracted a great deal of attention, when Mr. Quinn demonstrated the complete hopelesness of getting ahead of the professionals in any of their games. In card games he knew all the cards held by his opponent, although his opponent shuffled and dealt. With dice, aces were thrown at will. Great Lines Will Meet There-Future Developments.

Within three years a man will be able to get into the train at Ostend and travel straight through to Port Arthur. travel in a railway carriage from the Cape to Alexandria. There is yet a third great world line from Constantinople via Palestine, Persia, India and Burmah to Hong Kong. The importance of these three great lines of communication cannot be sufficiently dwelt upon; it can certainly not be exaggerated. With the Siberian railway we have nothing to do now; with regard to the other two this is to be noted-they both of them meet in Palestine. Palestine is the great center, the meeting of the roads. Whoever holds Palestine commands the great lines of communication, not only by land, but by sea.

It was said of Oliver Wendell Holmes that some of his best jokes were made at times when there was nobody to appreciate them save a chance listener.

One such fortunate listener tells of a reply which she, sitting in a street car, heard Dr. Holmes make to a complaining writer of little wit and less talent.

"I've worked with all my heart on that book," said the young man, who had been treating the doctor to a long account of a recent collection of poetry which he had edited. "I've used my best taste and judgment and research, and I feel confident that nobody could have done the thing better or more thoroughly than I have. And what reward do I get? Harsh criticisms for my omission of a few popular poets and a paltry $100."

"A hundred dollars!" echoed the Autocrat of the Breakfast Table wearily. "Why, I wouldn't have written that book for $1,-000, I'm sure!"

The collector of poetry smiled with gratification, but the listener turned to regard a passing dray lest her face should betray her. - Youth's Companion.

A Losing Joke.

Mr. Jones was clerk in a city office, and owing to the jealousy of his fellow clerks was daily subjected to many petty annoyances. One day his enemies thought they had hit on a plan which would amuse them and add to Jones' discomfort. The next morning when Mr. Jones entered the office one after another came up and said to him in a tone of horror: "Why, whatever is the matter with you! Are you ill? You look simply ghastly. Mr. Jones sat listening quietly for a few minutes. Then suddenly, to the surprise of everybody, he got off his stool and slipped into the manager's office. A short time only had elapsed when the manager appeared, followed by Mr. Jones, and, addressing the astonished clerks, said:

"As Mr. Jones is so unwell I have granted him permission to take a day or two's holiday; so you must divide his work equally among you until he returns."-Pearson's Weekly.
