A Military Wedding.

WEDNESDAY MORNING

Brilliant scenes attended the wedding at St. James' Cathedral yesterday afternoon of Miss Aimee Glenholm Falconbridge, daughter of Chief Justice and Mrs. Falconbridge, and Capt. David Douglas Young. Royal Canadian Dragoons, son of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Young of Kingston. There were 500 invited guests. The service was fully choral and the ceremony was performed under an arch of palms, guthern smilax and margurites erected at the chancel. The officiating clergy were Canon Welch and Rev. Alex Williams. The boy chair led the bridal procession, followed by the ushers, Lieut. Perry (48th). Lieut. Innes (C.O.C.) and Lieuts. Nordheimer and Gilman (R.C. D.). Capt. Young and the groomsman. Capt. Jamleson of Quebec, joined the party at the chancel. All were in uniform. Following the groomsman came the little flower girl, Miss "Babs" Mulock, a niece of the bride, in daintiest of white muslin frocks over pale green, a wreath of marguerites on her fair hair and a big white straw hat, crushed into the semblance of a basket, and overflowing with marguerites, hung by broad pale green ribbon close to her arm. The bridesmaids, Miss Jessie Hale of London, and Miss Ruby Ramsay of Montreal, came next, and after them Miss Mary Campbell and Ramsay of Montreal, came next, and after them Miss Mary Campbell and Miss Muriel Barwick. All four were in Miss Muriel Barwick. All four were in semi-empire gowns of palest green marquisette, and overskirts trimmed with bands of pale green satin. Hats of white straw trimmed with marquerites and the groom's favors, brooches in which the regimental letters, "R. C.D." were set in whole pearls, were worn with these pretty costumes, which were completed by straw-hat baskets like that of the little flower girl, filled to the brim with marguerites. Then followed the matron of henor, the bride's sister, Mrs. Cawthra Mulock, in beautiful semi-empire gown

henor, the bride's sister, Mrs. Cawthra Mulock, in beautiful semi-empire gown of pale green satin broadened on the shoulders with silk embroidery of the same shade touched with gold. A hat of white with touches of gold was worn with this, and a basket bouquet of marquerites, like those of the bridesmaids, carried. Last of all came the bride, escorted by her father, who gave her away. Wreaths of flowers were woven into her semi-empire gown of ivory crepe de chine. The overskifit, indet with rose point lace seeded with pearls, was opened at one side and trimmed with satin roses. Broad bands of the pearl-studded lace finished with a fold of satin were brought in Gibson effect from the shoulders across the front of the bodice. A vell of fine lace draped from a coronet of orange blossoms half shrouded this exquisite costume, which was completed quisite costume, which was completed by a bracelet of beaten gold set with pearls and a shower touquet of bride roses and lilles of the valley, the gift reses and lilies of the valley, the gift of the groom. The groom's present to the little flower madden was a brooch of the letter "B" in pearls, and the bride's favors to the groomsmen, gold cuff links. Amid the merry jangle of the chimes the bridal party left the church thru an archway of swords drawn and crossed by the non-commissioned officers and men of "B" squadron R.C.D., who lined both sides of the aisle down which they passed. ITALIAN PEOPLES.

White politically one, the people of the north and south of Italy, are racially separate peoples. The Longobards, or Lombards, who about 568 took possession of northern Italy and permanently establish themselves in the rich valley watered by the Po and its affluents, were of Teutonic stock, their original home having been the region on the left bank of the Elbe, round about Magdeburg and Luneburg, Germany; while the Italians south of Lombardy are of the old Latin stock. This fact explains the physical and other differences between the people from the north and the people from the south of Italy.
