

CARD.

A directory has been a long felt want in our fast prospering city, not only with the daily increasing number of strangers who visit Sherbrooke, but also, and particularly with the business community of the city.

At the urgent request of many, we undertake to supply this want, trusting that our efforts will prove satisfactory to the public at large and be rewarded by an ample patronage.

We take the opportunity here offered, to thank the advertisers who assure the success of our work, and to express the hope that the public will remunerate their generosity. If it can be an encouragement to them as well as to future advertisers (for it is the publisher's intention to make this volume an annual publication), we guarantee them that no effort will be spared to secure it a wide circulation and bring their cards into general notice. Arrangements being made to have copies left for general use at every public place.

Besides the advertisements, the book affords extensive information concerning the city, its different institutions, public and private.

The names of the inhabitants of the city are arranged alphabetically as regards the whole population as well as regards the residents on each street.

Respectfully,

J. P. ROYER.
