WISDOM'S WHISPERS.

Women can manage a flirtation and avoid producing ugly complications. A man falls in love with a woman without knowing just why or wherefore. To some women affection means nothing more than self interest or gratification of vanity. Men who openly discuss affairs of the heart usually have several black marks to their credit. When a woman talks a great deal about a certain man she wants others to think that it is purely a case of accident. After a man has had a spell of the blues he takes on the manner of one who is highly pleased with himself. It is easy for women to become a barway look and still notice the man around her. To a man it is exceedingly difficult to give anything like an accurate description of a woman. The statistics show a man that most attract a woman are his neckwear and his hair. When a woman has large feet she attracts an odd and mismatched shoe.

SO VIAL REUNION.

The first of the series of social meetings organized by Ald. Christie was held last evening in the blue room in the county jail. The room had been handsomely decorated for the occasion. Festoons of handkerchiefs were hung at each window, and with the iron barred lattice work combined to make a most picturesque effect. The room was lighted by soft prismatic rays emanating from several large crystals skillfully extracted from the rock candy mine in the park, while an interesting exhibit of soap and street as served to the inmates was on view in one end of the room.

A number of appropriate mottoes hung on the walls. Among them the Times new reporter noticed the following:—"We love our dear Keeper." "Home is never like this." "Well, well groomed and happy." "There's only a few of us left." "And they're all gone." "Bill McJagg, known as 'Boody Billy' who is sojourning at the institution during the winter months presided, and after the singing of "Hall, Hall, the Gang's All Here," made a brief address of welcome. "We are here," said Mr. McJagg, "to meet our kind friend Ald. Christie, who is to speak to us on the noble theme of 'Why Is This? Or Mosses from an Old Log.' I need not point out to you, my fellow prisoners—comrades—that Ald. Christie takes a deep interest in us. His heart bleeds for us. Already he has lost seven pounds. He was yearned to do us, yes, to do us some kindness. Consequently he has organized this meeting and I will now ask him to speak to you."

As Ald. Christie arose to speak several inmates in the back of the hall unmoored a great banner, which floated over the heads of the assembly bearing on its silken surface these words: "Christie our mentor, our guide, our friend."

The veteran alderman was overcome with emotion. The crowd cheered. "Friends," he said, (another cheer) "I feel that you are my friends. We are all brothers. We must not forget this. Some people have been unkind enough to say that the brotherhood of man is non-existent. I say it is not. I can prove it. Look at that other great and similar institution, the city council. Are we not united as brothers, yet thicker than brothers—thicker as your own soup—in which I am pleased to observe you are flourishing. I am glad to be here. I was not always thus. Time was when I was wont to think that an inmate of this admirable institution was not fit to associate with members of the city council. I have changed my opinion. We would like to see more of you at City Hall. Come down and see us. Come in bunches. We would hold closer communion with you. We are brothers, again I say, brothers."

Ald. Christie's eloquent peroration was cheered to the echo, and he resigned his seat amid great applause. Mr. James Sokes then arose and proposed to replace the Quaco busy of the Quaco light, which is reported to be out of position.

After the singing of "Let Brothers be chieftains of the clan," and a responsive reading of the city by-laws by Ald. Christie and Mr. Vag. Rant, the meeting closed.

Soup bones were then served, and as the visitor from city hall passed out a selected choir sang "Say Au Revoir, but Not Good Bye."
