ter to a doctor until this morning.

TO RE-ORGANIZE Y. M. A.

Plans for a reorganization of St.
Peter's Y. M. A. were completed yesterday afternoon at a meeting of past and present members. Rev. James Cloran, C. S. S. R., rector of St. Peter's church, addressed the assemblage and outlined the proposed programme. Considerable enthusiasm was displayed at the meeting, which augurs well for a revival of interest and activities.

SUMMER BLOOMS.

Thomas E. Dyer brought a breath of summer into the Times-Star office this morning by displaying the chills of autumn. He came laden with a bou-quet plucked in the area off the South Point road on Saturday afternoon by Master Forbes Elliott, son of George Elliott, of Celebration street. It was composed of daisies, buttercups, clover bloom, goldenrod, pigeon berries and the blossoms of the wild mustard. Blueberries and cranberries were also found.
All these are the reward of him who cares to wander afield with Nature.

HIS MISSING PARROT.

Struan Robertson, on reading in this morning's Telegraph-Journal, the reports on the Golden Grove road on Sunday saw a strange bird resembling a parrot, was much interested, believing this was his pet, a West Indian bird of fine coloring and some speaking Robertson is eager to ascertain just which was nicely decorated. In the centre of the dining table was a large birthday cake lighted with many candles, the gift of her niece, little Eliza-many lovely gifts.

HAD WOODS ADVENTURE.

There was joy in camp in the Chil-holm Lake vicinity on Saturday night on the return of one of a party of hunters, who had been in the woods after birds. A prominent business man of the city was separated from his companions in the pursuit of sport and a little later found himself involved in difficulties in the thick woods. He was hours in working his way back and meanwhile there was anxiety on the part of his companions. Guns were fired to attract his attention but a great thickly wooded hill was between himself and his friends. There was rejoicing when he finally made his way to their side.

REX BEACH SAYS IT'S GREAT HERE

Noted Author Takes Away Good Impressions of New Brunswick.

Rex Beach, the eminent American author, who returned to his home in the United States a few days ago after a wonderful week in the New Brunswick woods as the guest of W. G.
McIntyre, New Brunswick a highly enthusiastic booster for our big game hunting and bird shooting lands, charmed with our scenic grandeur, delighted with the unfeigned hospitality of the numerous people he met, and solemnly purposing to return next year and bring "his gang" with him.

The virtu writer had a lot of vellespert. Woodcock was his special quest and he brought down plenty of them with an unerring gun. Local shots were amazed at his speed and aim.
However, the visitor was hunting with strange dogs. Next year he promises to bring his own dogs.

During the camping phases of his visit, Rex Beach proved a most amiable companion and full of frolic.
For a man so much to the front in the estimation of the world-public, one dined on every hand, he seemed to revel in the unconventionality of his meals, after-dinner fireside smoke, chats, abandonment of razor and fussy details of street attire.

It is rather a thousand times over he sitting here with you good friends at this beautiful meal of real hearty food than to be banqueted by the most exclusive club in the world," he once remarked. "I tell you this is the life, and you Canadians know how to live it."

Mr. Beach had been away from his home for over a month, and doubtless his pleasuring was not unminged with impressions and observations that will drop out in his glowing romances of the great out-of-doors for which he is deservedly famous. His host, Mr. Mc-Intyre, for whom Mr. Beach had the most flattering things to say, enjoyed the visit of the author to the fullest, as did intimate friends and many informal callers to the Loch Lomond camp from the city.

A leading magazine recently rated Rex Beach's income from story royalties, moving picture rights, etc., at approximately $200 a day. While here Mr. Beach said he was writing a special story for Rudolph Valentino, something he says: authors and scenarists will not dare cut up and snift about to suit their ulterior motives. He says sometimes he has been badly hurt for movie purposes have been horribly mangled.

ROYAL SCARLET CHAPTER MEETING

At a largely attended meeting of St.
John County East, Royal Scarlet Chapter, Friday evening, applications for advancement were balloted on. Three candidates were exalted to Knighthood in the illustrious Scarlet Order.
There were visitors present from the St. John County, West, Chapter.

A very enjoyable evening was spent, with refreshments at the close. Another meeting will be held this month, at which several more candidates will be exalted. It was also decided to pay a fraternal visit to the St. John County West, Chapter during November. It was reported that Verner L. O. L. No.
1, of St. John, was still leading in the "Sentinel" contest for short term subscriptions. There is fair prospect, if present efforts are kept up until the close of the month, of their bringing the trophy to New Brunswick. There are three prizes being offered. A gold banner, as first prize; a set of officer-collars, second; and past master's Jewels, third.

THEY HELP ORPHANS

Six little children recently at 43 Vi-toria street sold candy and lemonade which netted $1.40, which they gave for the use of the orphans in care of the N. B. Protestant Orphans' Home. The girls are Helen Andrews, Helen Brook-lin, Lillian and Edith Waters, Leola Ward and Margaret Akery.

Four little girls, all under 12 years of age, held a bazaar at 98 Winter-street and realized the excellent sum of $83.45. They also had left over some useful clothing, biscuits, toys and candy, which they gave along with the money for the orphans. They are Mary Hult, Mary O'Brien, Violet and Audrey Woods.

Rev. C. W. Follette of Loch Lomond, his friends, parishioners and the Agricultural Society gave a large truck load of vegetables for the use of the orphans.
The Rev. Jos. Greenwell, Greenwell, Kings county, also sent from his parishioners several bags of vegetables for the use of the little children that are in care at this institution.
