The excellent research facilities and funding offered by Alberta's medical the U of A and U of C have attracted scientists from Alberta and beyond.

The funding is largely a result of the resources supplied by the Alberta Heritage Foundation for Medical Research.

Established in 1979 by the provincial government the Alberta Heritage Foundation for Medical Research is an endowment of roughly $1 billion aside for the purpose of pursuing medical research. The main objective of the Foundation is to support a balanced long-term research program directed to the discovery of new medical knowledge to better care.
