A SPLENDID ADVERTISEMENT OF THE MERITS OF COMMUNITY BREEDING

Animals of great substance, line quality and attractive appearance, the kind that top the market, are characteristic of the horse stock on the farms of Scotland. The big breeders have splendid horses; but so have the small farmers. Such a wide dissemination of pure bred, well bred stock will be achieved in Canada only when communities specialize in one breed, and devote their whole attention to its improvement, as has Scotland with the Clydesdale, and Normandy with the Percheron. As we adopt this community method of breeding scenes such as the one illustrated herewith will become more and more common on Canadian farms. Even more necessary is community breeding for the improvement of the dairy cattle of the country.
