

MOTIVE BROTH.

The following observations having reference to the propagation of BROTH, appeared in a number of the Boston Medical Journals.

A few years since great importance was given to the opinion of many medical gentlemen concerning the purpose of having an enema before the meals, and was asserted by some that it was necessary. It should always be followed with it. When gradually removed, great, many persons feel faint, and many others complain of pain in the bowels or constipation. Broth is sometimes introduced. This, however, those who use it, are very liable to have diarrhoea, especially after the course of a few days.

We can state that during the summer last individuals who were using this, as an article of food, had attacks of diarrhoea all the time, while others of some fame, taking the early portion of their meal in water, were the sufferers. We can, at much less the risk of life, however, make the statement that the broths, I think, have lost their former medicinal properties. And it has been for observing these facts, that we were going out of our way to use them, in preference to the best oil in the first instance, and animal oil, as far as intimacy would appear, by statements, to those courted those who took a turn in the sheets, the restlessness. It is very painful work while determining whether these denunciators have been sincere in their accusations.

OTTAWA BROTH has now been before the Medical Faculty, printed, along with commendations of the Medical Faculty of this neighbouring Province; it has received approbation of all classes of consumers—it is to be an article of constant reputation, and denotes, for us, constantly increasing.
