JUNGLE TRAGEDY.

English Lady Killed by Fatally Shot Tiger.

A distressing tragedy of the jungle has occurred in the Balaghat district of the central provinces, where Miss Sneyde, sister of Mr. Sneyde, the officer in charge of the Balaghat irrigation works, was killed by a wounded tiger.

The tiger, going hard, broke cover between two trees, and fell to a shot from Mr. Sneyde, but managed to get away apparently badly injured.

The two brothers, after directing Miss Sneyde to remain in her tree, went a short distance to decide from the blood trail whether the animal was worth following up at once or the next day.

The tiger, having gone a little distance, turned at right angles from its original direction, which brought it behind and in line with the tree in which Miss Sneyde was seated. Here it was fired at again. It fell, but once more made off, being too far gone to charge.

The two men, after walking a little to allow time for the second shot to take full effect, again followed up the track of the beast.

What happened next can only be deduced from the appearance of the ground.

Miss Sneyde, on the report of the second shot coming to her ears, apparently decided that the bullet had found its billet, and, alighting from the tree, proceeded in the direction from which she judged the shot had been fired, only to meet the infuriated and mortally wounded animal almost face to face.

The brothers, following the blood trail of the tiger, found at the end of it the lifeless body of their sister, while a few paces away lay the tiger, also dead.

CRAFTY BEGGARS.

Two Dodges That They Work On Pedestrians.

"I resent, and I have always resented," said Mr. Stoggleton, "the beggar who strikes me when I am looking in at a window."

"When I am walking along the street I am on the alert. If I see a beggar coming I can sheer out if I want to, and I can avoid him or I can keep on and meet him face to face. I have a chance to decide as to whether I should give or not."

"But when he comes upon me quite without warning as he does when I am looking in at a window, I resent it deeply, and in such circumstances I never give at all."

"At the same time, unsportsmanlike as I must regard such approach to be, there is another surprise attack the beggar makes that for its extrasuperlative nerve I cannot but view with a certain measure of admiration, this being his surprise of two men at once, two men on the sidewalk talking together, standing face to face and wholly engrossed in their conversation.

"Suddenly beside them appears the beggar, a totally unlooked for, unpleasant, and it may be embarrassing interruption. What happens then depends upon which of the two surprised men recovers first."

"If this man shakes his head and bids the beggar be on his way the other man does likewise, for even though the second man might have been disposed to give something, he cannot now give without seeming to disparage the first man's judgment. But if the first man gives, the second man does, too, whether he wants to or not, for he would fear that by not giving he might appear in the first man's eyes as stingy."

"So here the beggar gets double or nothing. But this tackling of two men at once is a far bigger game than just holding up one lone man looking in at a window, and I think it must be to the beggar correspondingly more interesting. I know it is more interesting to watch."

When the skin is much irritated by contact with dust and grime use oatmeal bath bags instead of soap. Buy cheesecloth in quantities and cut the bags about four inches square, fill them loosely with the following mixture and never use a bag but once, throwing it away after once used: Oatmeal, five pounds; powdered florentina oris root, one pound; almond meal, one pound; old castile soap, scraped to a powder, half a pound. Mix together and fill the bags.

THE CHILD.

Let It Work Out Own Entertainment.

Let a child entertain itself, or children entertain each other most of the play hours. Of course little suggestions and helps from grown-ups are welcome that will "start the ball rolling," as it were.

But let it be only a start, if you wish your child's imagination developed, if you wish to strengthen the initiative powers, which lie dormant, in every child, and which, if developed, prove such an asset in after life. Resourcefulness is another talent nipped in the bud, when a child is continually entertained, so that play means no effort at all. What is known as "the spoiled child" is usually the result of childhood's days where no effort is ever made for itself, in work or play. No wonder such a child is restless, unmanageable, mischievous, with no outlet whatever for stored-up energies and mentality.

Even the story hour will be made a more telling factor, if the usual rule is sometimes reversed, and the child tells mother a story, instead of always being told one. And it is, indeed, remarkable, when this is done, what exquisite little fancies are found to emerge fresh and dewy from fertile little brains.

Thrift.

She was comely, and a widow, and, moreover she was Scotch. She mourned MacIntosh, her late husband, for eighteen months, and then from a crowd of suitors chose honest, homely MacIntyre for the second.

"I'm no guid enough for you, dear!" he whispered. "What for did ye choose me out o' aae mony?"

"Ah, weel, ye see, your name's MacIntyre."

"Yes, but—" began the bewildered suitor.

"An' ye ken," finished the widow, "all my linen's marked 'Mac.'—that's why, Donald."

A SPLENDID MEDICINE FOR THE CHILDREN

Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine a mother can give her little ones. They are a mild laxative, which quickly regulate the bowels and stomach, and are guaranteed to be entirely free from any injurious drugs. Concerning them Mrs. A. D. West, Loreburn, Sask., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets have given me more satisfaction than anything else I have ever given my children. They are easily taken; always work well, and though I have given quite a few to my baby, they seem to work as well now as at first, which is something other laxatives seldom do." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Pretension isn't natural—nature never pretends.

Thoughts that disturb men most never enter a woman's head.

If a man is his own worst enemy he has a one-sided fight on his hands.

Our views of society depend upon whether we are inside or outside.

Unless a man is sincere he can never be a hero in his own estimation.

Cowards sink at night because they are afraid. Men laugh at love for the same reason.

What does it benefit a man if he is on the right road but headed the wrong way?

Were it not for the weather lots of people wouldn't have anything to kick about.

The sense of touch is highly developed in the man who knows just when to ask for a loan.

Success never roosts on the banner of the man who can't rely upon himself.

The man who is anxious to acquire knowledge is never ashamed to confess his ignorance.

Napoleon's Coin Trick.

It is said that thousands of five franc pieces are split into halves by their French owners every year in the hope of discovering an immense hidden treasure. This treasure, according to the legend, firmly believed, is an order to pay the holder one hundred thousand francs in silver five franc coins.

When Napoleon first set the five franc piece in circulation it was very difficult to induce a Frenchman to receive the new coin. Hence, according to the story, Napoleon gave it to be understood that he had ordered a cheque for one hundred thousand francs, written upon asbestos paper, to be concealed in one of the new silver pieces.

From that day to this no one has objected to the five franc piece.

SPANKING DOESN'T CURE!

Don't think children can be cured of bed-wetting by spanking them. The trouble is constitutional, the child cannot help it. I will send FREE to any mother my successful home treatment, with full instructions. If your children trouble you in this way, send no money, but write me to-day. My treatment is highly recommended to adults troubled with urine difficulties by day or night. Address: Mrs. M. Summers, Windsor, Ontario.

DOUBLE FLIM-FLAM

Pekin Jeweler Got Back His Money.

This is a story picked up in New York that has all the elements—save the love of touch—of a modern mystery story. M. Parrish Watson is a wealthy collector of China art. He sends emissaries all over China digging up treasures. One of his agents has just returned.

In Peking he was in the shop of a pawnbroker. A silk-hatted American, a Polish man of the world, came in, to secure of a loan on a pearl which he took out of a velvet bag. The broker applied the tests and was satisfied the pearl was genuine. He advanced $10,000. Later in the day one of his experts rushed to him breathlessly with the startling statement that the pearl was the most clever counterfeit he had ever seen. The broker made another examination and found he had been the victim of a flim flam artist.

Several days afterwards he called every Jeweler in Peking into a conference. He told them of his experience and he said he was simply going to take his loss, but he thought it was his duty to warn his fellow merchants. He held up the pearl before them.

"Here it is," he said. "To show you what I think of it and that the incident is closed, I am going to destroy it." He placed the pearl on an iron anvil with a hammer smashed it to tiny fragments with one blow.

The next day all the Peking newspapers carried a story about the way the merchant had been tricked and how he had destroyed the bogus gem. Several weeks went by and the incident was almost forgotten.

One morning the American who had pawned the pearl entered the shop. A clerk recognized him and went toward him. "I have come for my pearl," he said.

The clerk was in a panic. He begged the customer to wait a few minutes and he rushed off to his employer with the news. The broker came out of his private office and met the customer.

"I have come for my pearl," repeated the American.

"You have the money to redeem it," he was asked.

For answer the American counted out the exact amount and placed it on the counter. The broker went to the safe and brought back the pearl that was pawned. He had cleverly tricked the trickster. He knew there was only one chance of getting his money back and that was to make the customer believe the pearl had been destroyed. He resorted to this ruse and did not destroy the pawned pearl but a substitute. A surprised American walked out of the place with his counterfeit jewel—gnashing his teeth just like the smooth villain in the melodrama of old.

British Women Voters.

The women voters of Great Britain are a great host.

Their country recognized their ability and its need for their services.

About three million British men are on the continent in military activities.

A great legion of women are there, too, equally as devoted to winning the war.

The women at home, millions of them, are the mainstay of those who are at the front.

There has been no service which British women have not willingly rendered to defeat the Hun.

The parliamentary franchise has been conferred upon British women without regard to property qualifications.

The age limit has been fixed for the present at 30 years, and the privilege of the franchise thus becomes an honorarium (or a consolation) for those who have reached the ripe maturity of three decades.
