

SHARKEY KNOCKS OUT "KID" MCCOY

Ten Fast Rounds and a Clean Case of Over-Matched.

Betting Odds in Favor of McCoy at First—Even in the 7th. Then the Sailor Shows His Superiority—Sharkey to Fight Fitzsimmons.

LENOX ATHLETIC CLUB, New York, Jan. 10th.—Tom Sharkey, the American sailor, stands tonight the only heavy-weight possibility for championship honors and the title now held by Bob Fitzsimmons.

He whipped "Kid" McCoy good and hard in the 10th round of what was to have been a 20-round battle, and by doing so the Irish-American pugilist forged his way so positively and undeniably to the front rank that Fitzsimmons must now consider the sailor-pugilist's claim without delay.

Sharkey tonight was a revelation to those who saw him a couple of years ago. His ring work and generalship are so vastly superior to his exhibitions when he first came to the East as a fighter that the improvement is almost incredible.

When McCoy sent Sharkey twice to the floor in the third round no one doubted the Kid's ability to hit hard and many thought he had Sharkey at his mercy. This idea was soon dispelled when the Irishman began to get to his man.

By 7:30 there were 5,000 people in the house and the turnstiles were clicking merrily, so that by 8 o'clock the attendance was nearly as many thousands as the house could hold.

Bookmakers, headed by Joe Vendig, made the welkin ring with their shouts: "I'll bet a thousand to nine hundred on McCoy." "Come on with your money; the Kid must win."

Sharkey and McCoy entered the ring simultaneously at 10:23 p. m. Both wore bathrobes. McCoy wore white running trunks and a belt bearing the stars and stripes. Tom wore green trunks with a belt of American colors. They shook hands at 10:40.

THE FIGHT BY ROUNDS.

1. They dodded. McCoy tried a left for the wind, but missed. Tom seeing a left over the kidneys. Both men were careful. McCoy tried a left hook for the head, landing lightly. Tom uppeet with a right on the chest. McCoy made a half circle of the ring and then caught Tom on the stomach. Sharkey did not reply. McCoy sent a left to the stomach and brought it up to the face. Sharkey hooked with a light right to the ribs. Both men were sparring at the gong. McCoy's round.

2. McCoy sidestepped to the left for a half circle of the ring and let his left go, landing lightly on the face. Tom stepped back and McCoy ran close to him. Two of McCoy's reaches for his man were futile, but he caught Tom on the ropes and caught a light left on the nose. Tom came to the center of the ring and tried right and left without effect and then the Kid sent his left lightly to the face. McCoy continually kept sidestepping and evaded Tom's attempt for a left hook or swing very cleverly. McCoy put a light left on Tom's face when near the ropes, near the end; and Sharkey sent a hard left hook to the ribs just as the gong sounded.

3. Tom tried to force matters and McCoy at close quarters sent a left to the ear and ducked away from a left swing. Each sent lefts to the head at close quarters with little effect, and McCoy's foot work puzzled Tom, who could not land until McCoy stopped, after getting a left on the breast. Tom then sent his left to the neck and the "Kid" jabbed a hard jab on the nose. This seemed to annoy Tom, who was unused to such quick foot work, and McCoy hit his opponent with another quick jab on the nose. Twice around the ring McCoy sidestepped and at each step forced his left jab, landing lightly. Suddenly the Kid stood rigid and sent his right to the face, repeating the blow so hard that Tom fell to the floor. He jumped up like a rubber ball rebounding, and again he fell to the floor. The bell found them sparring.

4. McCoy's foot work was marvelous. He cut out the pace and Sharkey could not reach him through the Kid's clever sidestepping.

5, 6 and 7 were about the same.

8. They rushed to a clinch with nothing doing. McCoy sent a left swing to the head. Tom apperencing with left to the head, then sparring without any injury to either, and then Tom shouted "I'm tired." The Kid led a beautiful left for the head, but Tom played for the body, landing his left seemingly low and the Kid dropped to the floor of the ring, where he wriggled for eight seconds. It looked as if McCoy was down about 12 seconds, but the referee's count was only eight seconds. McCoy came up again seemingly uninjured and finished the round sparring.

9. McCoy opened with a left on the jaw, and Tom replied with left and right on the head, forcing the Kid all over the ring. Tom forced this fighting into his own corner, where he got McCoy with a terrible left on the stomach, sending a pall of water all over Tom Sullivan, who was sitting a box. McCoy recuperated quickly, but got another blow in the wind, which forced him to the ropes. Then Tom forced the fighting and landed half a dozen hard lefts on the breast and stomach as McCoy was trying to get away to the left. This was Tom's round by long odds.

10. The Kid kept skipping to the right and ran into a clinch, where he held Tom without a blow being struck. Sharkey took the advice of his chief second, Tom O'Rourke, and played for the head, but McCoy effectually guarded himself. Then Tom turned his attention to the body and landed on the ribs with his left, forcing McCoy. Then Tom turned his attention to the upper works, with Sharkey having a decided advantage. The sailor let fly both left and right, landing on the body and forcing McCoy to the east end of the ring, close to the center upright. McCoy faltered and Tom caught him with a left swing on the neck.

McCoy fell to the floor of the ring with his head hanging over the lowest of the three ropes, looking hopelessly around. The Kid lay there helpless while the referee counted 10 seconds after which he struggled to his feet, and Sharkey not knowing that the limit had expired, rushed at him once more, this time swinging his right on the neck just below the jaw, McCoy falling again. Then McCoy seemed to be in a helpless condition, but the referee, Tim Hurst, did not trouble himself in counting seconds but waived his right hand to Sharkey to retire to his corner, saying at the same time: "I counted McCoy out on the other fall. You have won."

McCoy struggled to his feet and staggered to where his seconds were already awaiting, and they placed him on the stool while Sharkey's adherents almost smothered him with embraces and congratulations. The time of the round was one minute and fifteen seconds.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 10.—Bob Fitzsimmons declares he will fight Sharkey any time after three weeks from tonight, providing the latter will put up a side bet of $10,000.

Together in Death.

The last incident in the double tragedy of last Thursday, transpired on Wednesday afternoon, when the bodies of the victims received the last kindly offices of friends and were consigned to their final resting place side by side. Rev. Hetherington, of the Methodist church, conducted the services at the undertaking establishment of Jenkins & Barker, where a large number of friends were gathered, after which those who desired were afforded opportunity to have a final view of the faces. Through the efforts of friends, the body of Libbie White was garbed in a cream silk robe and was encased in a casket covered with rich black broadcloth and ornamented with heavy silver mountings. The funerals were entirely free from the evidences of death.

The gentlemen who served as pall-bearers were as follows: For Evans—Thomas Dolan, Pat Harrington, James O'Neill, Henry Cox, Charles Berry and Mr. Atkinson; for Libbie White—Joseph Monahan, John Roigan, Charles E. Miller, Tony Mack and James Weil.

The Territorial Court.

His lordship, Judge Dugas, of the Territorial court, took occasion during the sittings this week to pass some severe remarks on the prevalence of perjury in the Yukon country and to throw out a strong hint that he proposed enforcing its curtailment. It came about at the conclusion of the trial of Thomas Henderson vs. Ellison & Greenleaf, which was an action to recover on a note of $250 given to A. Goldberg, and assigned to plaintiff. When all the conflicting testimony had been given, his lordship said that it is a shame for this community that there is so much perjury in it, and that in the pending action he should consider the propriety of having the parties arrested and tried for the offense. Judgment was for plaintiff.

Several other cases of more or less interest came up before his lordship during the week. In the case of F. C. Isert vs. Simon Ruppstein, Daniel W. McDonald and G. W. Elliott, being an action to foreclose a mortgage on a sulphur claim. Judgment was for plaintiff.

A mining dispute between N. A. James, as plaintiff and B. C. Sprague and A. McDonald as defendants, was adjourned to Friday.

The case of Celia F. Smith vs. William Farrell was called, but trial was also continued. This is an action to obtain possession of a hill-side claim opposite the upper end of No. 14 Eldorado, known as the Egan claim.

AGAIN FOR THE OUTSIDE

The Nugget Express Will Send Its Fifth Team to the Coast on Monday.

On Monday morning, February 13th, the fifth dog team of the Nugget Express will leave for Seattle via Skagway.

The service inaugurated but a short two months ago was with the idea of continuing a permanent express connection between Dawson and the coast and from the popularity of the movement and good patronage given the company it is safe to prognosticate a glowing future for the express company. A personal delivery to coast points and receipts taken either from the person's to whom the packages are directed or from connecting express companies.

St. Mary's.

The report from the above institution for the week ending Feb. 3rd, shows a steadily decreasing number of inmates. There were 32 patients discharged, two admitted and one death, leaving 45 beds still occupied. The deceased was John Hughes, of New York, aged 48 years.

Afoot in Nineteen Days.

William Hunter, a well-known old-timer in these parts, gladdened the eyes of his many friends on Wednesday by again appearing in their midst after a sojourn on the outside. Mr. Hunter left Bennett alone and afoot and made the trip to Dawson in 19 days. Notwithstanding this is pretty fast time for a long journey, the young gentleman has been heard to complain because the roadhogs along the way were not further apart. He will only stay here a week and then proceed to Circle City, where the most of his interests are. He reports having passed several loads of mail coming in, which, he believes, should begin arriving on Saturday.

The City of Seattle, on which Mr. Hunter left the states, had a passenger list of 313, and all the steamers are carrying large loads of gold-seekers into the country. Billy McPhee, another old-timer, left for the inside on the 12th.

POLICE COURT ITEMS.

In police court, before Justice Harper, Curley Carr was given six months for vagrancy and the charge of which was dropped.

Billy Moss was arraigned again on a charge of stealing a fur robe and held for trial.

J. L. Bates was also put on trial at the territorial court, but was admitted to bail.

Mrs. R. Insley had her husband arrested on a charge of threatening to kill and he was bound over to keep the peace.

Jake Klein on the Outside.

A letter has been received from Jake Klein, dated Skaguay, and enclosing newspaper clippings showing that he arrived there Jan. 7th. The Daily Alaskan says:

"Jake Klein arrived last night direct from Dawson. He left the Klondike capital on December 30th, and got through with nothing more serious than a number of very unpleasant mishaps, being laid up one day with a sprained ankle and delayed four days, cutting a trail around Thirty-mile river. He also broke through the ice along the shore of Shallow lake three times, and was caught near the summit in a blinding blizzard. But such adventures are only accidents as worth a passing remark."

"Mr. Klein brings out some private mail and express matter for the Klondike Nugget Express, a new concern which is undertaking to provide a quick and prompt service with the outside. He says he met young Hume about two miles this side of Lake Bennett, going in with U. S. mail. The mail-carrier, Mr. Klein says, was going about four miles a day. It is Mr. Klein's intention to go to Seattle at once and return about February 1st."

Among the clippings sent in by Mr. Klein is one from the Alaskan showing how private mail carriers from the inside are known to be abandoning their sacks of mail on the passes and other places. One case is related by the proprietor of the White Pass house:

A day or two ago he concluded to investigate the contents of a package left by a stranger. What was his astonishment to find that it contained several hundred letters, some few of them stamped, but the majority unstamped. These letters were addressed to almost every state in the union, and many of the provinces in Canada and some in England. They were brought out from the interior by the stranger who was probably given a dollar a piece (the usual price for bringing out letters) for the service and for mailing the same to their destination. How this stranger carried out the contract is indicated above.

The Nugget Express Creek Service.

The excellent creek service given by the Nugget Express is being appreciated by professional and business men. Letters of inquiry regarding matters of importance are being sent from Dawson to all parts of this district and the prompt and expedition manner in which business is handled insures the Nugget Express a large and increasing patronage.

Death of Mrs. C. A. Carper.

SEATTLE, Dec. 30th.—Mrs. C. A. Carper died yesterday morning at 120 Terry avenue, of paralysis, aged 70 years. She was a native of Ohio, Columbus being her home. She came to Seattle about 10 years ago, after two sons, Dr. P. H. Carper and T. C. Carper, are now at Dawson.

Notice of Dissolution.

Notice is hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing between Arthur Lewis, Lewis Garfinkle and Lewis A. Henschel, carrying on business under the firm name of A. Lewis & Co., has this day been dissolved by mutual consent, Arthur Lewis retiring. The said business will hereafter be carried on by Lewis Garfinkle and Lewis A. Henschel under the name of Garfinkle & Co. Dated at Dawson, Y. T., Feb. 2, 1899.

Trace of Mining Accidents.

T. F. Flynn, formerly a contractor of Seattle, was severely injured by falling down a shaft at No. 11 above on banana, on Monday this 6th. His arm was broken and his body and head badly bruised.

Alfred Hohn, of San Francisco, working a day at 17 Eldorado, was knocked senseless by the windlass slipping from his hand and striking him in the face. His injuries necessitated medical attendance, but it is hoped he will soon be himself again.

Rich Quartz Discovery.

Among the important items of news brought in from the outside by Messrs. Sid Barrington and "Cow" Miller was one to the effect that a man named Charles Dyer, formerly of the State of Washington, had discovered a supposedly rich quartz ledge near Ketchikan, about 100 miles below Juneau. The story further states that Dyer has refused an offer of half a million dollars for his find.

Smoked Out.

On Saturday, January 21st, Thomas Bishop's lay on Darlington's Gold Hill claim was taken possession of by a gang of eight men in the employ of Miller & Burke, who are contesting Frank Fisher's right to the Woomer claim. Mr. Bishop went to Inspector Madden's office, but found both that official and the police sergeant out. Now Mr. Bishop is an old Cariboo miner and believes in using the best means to obtain his just dues; so, repairing to his cabin, prepared a plan with Mr. Darlington to evict the interlopers by strategy. Building a fire in the tunnel where the intruders were, they next stopped all ventilation so that the smoke, instead of going through the air shafts, it filled the tunnel and drove out the gang of men like smoked rats. In the meantime Inspector Madden arrived on the scene and informed them that if they interfered further with Mr. Bishop's rights they would be summarily dealt with.
