BROCKVILLE FAIR NOTES.

Without fear of contradiction, it may be confidently predicted that the display which will be provided at and the entertainment which will be gained from the 1924 edition of the long established Brockville Fair (August 18-22) will thoroughly conform with the reputation of this sterling exhibition.

From the Agricultural standpoint it should be one of the most outstanding years in the history of the Fair. Where many other Fairs have been reducing both money prizes and the classifications, the Brockville Agricultural Fair has continued its policy of giving every possible encouragement to the Agricultural interests. The prize money has been more than doubled within the last two years, thus encouraging the raising of Pure Bred Livestock and the best products of the land.

The Fair will be the show window of Eastern Ontario. It will reflect the conditions and prosperity of the East. The farmer and business man will find the display of livestock, poultry, roots and grain, and the manufactures, mercantile and government exhibits crammed with ideas which may be turned into ready capital.

No stone is being left unturned, nothing is being neglected for the comfort and entertainment of the visitors. The general programme covering five big days and four big nights is one of the most attractive ever attempted by the directors of the Fair. Educational features and pleasures are combined. There will be a wealth of amusement.
