WONDROUS MIXTURE OF COLOR AT THE FINAL CEREMONIAL AT WINDSOR

The Pathetic Grief of the Queen Mother Was the Central Figure in the Great Historic Picture in St. George's Chapel.

London, May 20—After a funeral progress through the streets of the Capital of his Kingdom, unparalleled in history, and after a picturesquely beautiful return to the old Castle which is above all places today the home of British Royalty, the dead King sleeps tonight in the crypt of St. George's Chapel, Windsor, into which his coffin body was lowered after the last services of the Church of England had been read before the most distinguished congregation that has ever gathered in any temple of God at any time in the history of the world.

Then walked King George, leading the Queen Mother by the hand. She, with pale strangely composed face and simple flowing black costume, was throughout the central figure in this great historic picture. Her pale face turned now to this side and now to that side with a slight gracious, but, as it seemed, an unseeing bow. The standing congregation ranged vis a vis along the chapel bowed in return. There was something weird and uncanny in this sad exchange of courtesy. It seemed a farewell rather than a greeting.

The altar was simply decked with two white vases containing white lilies. Behind it, a dim confused mass of white and scarlet, stood the choir. On either side was a group of military and naval officers and Garter officials. Before it were the Archbishops and Bishops. In front of them stood the plain, purple-covered catafalque, three or four feet high. On this was laid the coffin and panel with the regalia.

KING EDWARD'S FUNERAL

Might Loyally Observed Here as in Other Towns of the Province.

Friday, the day of the funeral of King Edward was loyally observed here by all classes. Business was suspended, except most necessary acts. All denominations paid special honor to the departed sovereign's memory. In St. Mary's Roman Catholic church the memorial service was at nine a. m., a very impressive service being conducted by Rev. T. Maguire, who spoke in highest terms of late King and loyally pledged allegiance to the new. The C. M. B. A. band marched to and from church playing appropriate music. At 11 a. m. the Episcopal church held its service, conducted by the Rector, Rev. W. Nicoll, who spoke very feelingly of the Empire's loss.

At 2.30 a union service was held in St. James' Presbyterian church, on the platform being the pastor, Rev. S. J. MacArthur; Rev. Dr. Cousins, Baptist, and Rev. W. J. Deane, Methodist; and a large choir from those three churches. The Mayor and Town Council attended in a body, as did also the local Orangemen with their band. The congregation was large. The three clergymen each took part in the service, the principal address being given by Rev. Mr. Deane, who spoke of the late monarch in the most eulogistic terms as a righteous ruler and world-renowned peace maker. He was followed by Rev. Mr. MacArthur who spoke more briefly in the same strain.

In the evening Lieut. T. H. Whalen of the 12th Field Battery, with a detachment of six artillerymen and two cannon fired a sal-

THE ROYAL MOURNERS

LOWERED TO THE TOMB

Presently King George stepped forward and placed on the coffin a square dark crimson cloth. This was King Edward's "company color" of the Grenadier Guards. As the choir chanted "Man That is Born of Woman" the coffin noiselessly and swiftly disappeared. People remarked afterward that they had seen it on the catafalque at one moment, and then the next they realized it was no longer there. Doubtless attention was more riveted on the notable group living near the grave than on the casket of the great dead, who was to descend there.

As the sentence "Ashes to ashes and dust to dust" was uttered, a military officer stepped forward from a group near the altar and crumbled a handful of earth into the grave.

ute of 68 guns, the C. M. B. A. band playing appropriate martial music during the intervals of the firing.

The churches, Town Hall and other public and many private buildings were handsomely decorated with black and purple and the citizens generally observed the day as became the solemn occasion. The two bands were a credit to the town, the playing of each being first-class. Newcastle should be, and is, proud of having two such organizations in its midst.

B. Genevieve Baird
IN
A Romance in Bohemia, at Opera House
Thursday and Friday.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY

Miss B. Genevieve Baird the young Canadian actress will fill a two night's engagement at the opera house commencing Thursday, May 26. For the first night she will present the four act play A Romance in Bohemia, by W. A. Tremayne the author of Robert B. Mantell's successes, The Dagger and the Cross, A Secret War, The Light of Other Days and A Free Lance—in which she impersonates a young artist Elsa Merton, who has come to New York to win fame and fortune. All the characters in the play are distinct types—among others is an American business man who thinks the world is ruled by money—an artist with high ideals, a society girl and a lodging house slaver, an immigrant from England—The play contains a pretty love story and is full of bright lines.
On the second night of her engagement Miss Baird will be seen in a triple bill, the form of entertainment made so popular by the late Rosina Vokes—which gives the artist and her company a fine chance to display their versatility—The plays presented are A Lesson in Diplomacy—Her Last Chance—and Nance—The first named is a parlour melodrama the characters in which are drawn from the diplomatic circles of London—Her Last Chance tells a pathetic story of life in New York, and Miss Baird has received unstinted praise for her portrayal of the Heroine Nellie Car—The scene of Nance is laid in the east side of New York and the story is one of powerful interest.
Miss Anne Ciard, late of the Bonnie Briar Bush company, will be seen in Highland dances and will also give an imitation of Harry Lauder singing his celebrated song "The safest of the family."

HARRY WAUGH ENDED HIS LIFE BY HANGING HIMSELF

Press Despatch Tells of Tragic Death of Former York County Man who Became Famous as a Prospector and Miner—Hanged Himself in a Rooming House Last Friday.

Fredericton, May 18—The Gleaner has announced the death of Harry F. Waugh at Chicago on Sunday, and since then the following despatch from Chicago has been received, dated May 16:—
Harry F. Waugh, of Seattle, Washington, prospector and member of the Arctic Club, and leader of the Waugh Sledge Expedition to the delta of the Mackenzie River, hanged himself at a rooming house here Saturday. Pawn tickets were found in his clothing.

Fuller particulars than are contained in this despatch will be awaited with interest. Mr. Waugh left here two weeks ago on Saturday for Montreal, and the following Monday left Montreal for Chicago en route to Seattle. He is known to have had a large amount of money with him on his leaving Montreal. The fact that he was reduced to pawning some of his personal effects in Chicago would indicate that he had been the victim either of some pickpockets or a class of other designing men in that city.

Mr. Waugh had put all of his own personal resources into the enterprise in which he had lately been engaged on the Peel River and with the assistance of friends got together some additional money. It was while on his way back to the Peel with this additional equipment that his funds disappeared at Chicago, with the result of suicide.

UNMATCHED SCENES HOMAGE IN A PAGEANTRY OF SOLEMN SPLENDOR

The Magnificence of the Imposing Spectacle as King Edward's Body was Borne to the Tomb at Windsor has Never Been Approached.

London, May 20—King Edward VII. passed today into history amid scenes of homage such as no man ever before received from his fellows.

Death was never clothed in a panoply more sublime; dignity in grief never received expressions more stately or more exalted.

Rulers of men never have assembled in such numbers to do honor to the greatest among them all, and yet nothing in the stupendous spectacle has been so imposing as the spectators themselves. Mankind in such vast aggregate as was seen in London today becomes the individual personification of the race, and never, even at the obsequies of the beloved mother of the dead monarch, has a human assemblage typified so completely the unity of the nation.

A BRILLIANT SPECTACLE

Far surpassing the ceremony attending the removal of the King's body from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Hall, the procession today included nine Sovereigns, the former President of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt, who alone was unraried in uniform, the heirs to several Thrones, the members of the Royal Family, Field Marshalls, Generals and Admirals whose names are synonymous with British achievements in war; detachments of troops of all the British arms and representatives of foreign armies and navies in variegated uniforms.

A PATHETIC SCENE

At Westminster Hall the widowed Queen who spent a last minute beside the body of the King, was assisted from her carriage by the German Emperor upon whom the loss of his Royal uncle has lain heavily. The Emperor kissed the hand and cheek of Alexandra and passed her to her son, King George.

Here the Queen Mother glancing up caught sight of the King's charger, waiting to follow his master to the bier, and near at hand the King's favorite dog led by a girl, and she faltered, gripping the arm of the King, and pathetically gazing upon the animal Edward loved so well. Then she entered the hall with King George, Emperor William and the Duke of Connaught, there to offer a silent prayer and watch the removal of the coffin to the gun carriage.

SORE FEET AND CHAFED PLACES

"Zam-Buk" is best for chafed places, sore feet, or inflamed patches, caused by friction. For babies' sensitive skins it is especially adapted, because it is of purely herbal composition. Don't apply to the delicate skin of your children, either for cuts, sores or skin diseases, the crude salves made up from rancid animal oils and fats, with mineral coloring and scented matter to hide their unpleasant appearance and odor! Remember that whatever gets into the pores, gets into the blood. Stick to nature, and pure natural products. Zam-Buk is nature's own healer, and is, therefore, not only superior in purity, but also in strength. Cures where other things fail. Use it, also, for piles, festering sores, varicose ulcers, cuts, burns, and every-day injuries. Every home needs it!

KING GEORGE'S MESSAGE TO DOMINIONS

London, May 23—On the occasion of the anniversary of the Empire, King George has issued two gracious messages to the Colonies and India, somewhat similar in style to the message which he addressed yesterday to the nation. In both he refers to his previous tours through the respective Dominions, promises to follow in his father's footsteps, uphold constitutional government, safeguard the liberties of the Colonial Empire, and devote himself to the Indian people. With reference to the rumors that it is the intention of the Queen Mother Alexandra in the future to reside in Denmark, a court circular announces that Alexandra will always look upon England as her home.

FUTURE OF THEIR APPARENT.

Prince Edward, the heir to the throne, will no doubt, be created Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester in the course of time, probably during the next few months.

He succeeds at once, however, to the Duchy of Cornwall, which has a clear income of $400,000 a year, the property having appreciated in value enormously in recent years in consequence of the falling in of leases on the estates in London.

This $400,000 a year will accumulate for the Duke, so that by the time he comes of age he will have an independent fortune from this source alone of $2,500,000. It may be recalled that the accumulation from this source during the minority of King Edward enabled him to buy the Sandring estate.

THE DUCHY OF CORNWALL

The Duchy of Cornwall is a sovereign duchy, and was, with various rights of regality, created by charter dated March 17, 1337, in favor of Edward, the Black Prince, who, in the words of the charter, was "to have and hold the said duchy to himself and to his heirs, being the eldest born sons of the King of England."

It is understood in the court entourage that the course of education of their apparent, the Duke of Cornwall, will undergo an important revision in consideration of his added responsibilities. In view of the presumption that the coronation of King George will be appointed for June of next year the contemplated cruise round the world by His Majesty's eldest sons will be deferred until after that event.

SPEECHLESS AND PARALYZED.

"I had valvular disease of the heart," writes Mrs. J. S. Goodie, of Truro, N. S. "I suffered terribly and was often speechless and partially paralyzed. One dose of Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart gave me relief, and before I finished one bottle I was able to go about. To-day I am a well woman." Sold by A. E. SHAW'S Pharmacy. 43
