

Comedy Feature at the Majestic

YOUR OWN HORN, WITH AN ALL STAR CAST.

The New York stage success "Blow Your Own Horn," that is playing at the Majestic theatre to-night, is a perfect example of what a first-class actor can do with a corking good comedy. From the moment the first scene is played, the audience is entertained with the tenderly-raised city boy who is the rough-necked farmer child, James H. Horn, the director, gives us a hilarious succession of chortles, and downright laughter.

There is one especially spectacular sequence toward the end of the play which is an example of superb comedy. The heroine and the young actor are trapped in an electrified room, where the radio invention of the latter is located. Their lives are threatened by the selfish stupidity of the girl's father, who, to discourage investors from putting money in the boy's invention, had tampered with the apparatus. As a result, the electrical sparks and uncharged atmosphere surround the couple and threaten their lives. Here, chancing to remember that he has seen birds sit on telephone wires and fly away unhurt, scales the tremendous current which is passing through the wire. For physical comedy this scene is the most breath-taking to be shown in a long time. The virile yet whimsical impersonation of the penniless doughboy by James H. Horn, the marvelously humorous characterization of the girl's father by Ralph Lewis, and the dainty impersonation of the newly discovered starlet, Perdita, are outstanding features of this delicious comedy. The cast of the cast, however, is so excellent that it hardly seems fair to single any one for special eulogy.

Trinity College of Music Scholarship

The Trinity College of Music, London, has awarded a Junior Music Scholarship of six guineas, to Mary Smyth, daughter of Mr. Thomas Smyth, King's Bridge Road, and daughter of the Presentation Convent, Cathedral.

The music examination held last night at the college scored the highest marks of any candidate in the Island since she had only then completed her year.

Congratulations to the youthful candidate, her parents and her school.
