WHAT NEXT, ALDERMEN?

The electric light developments in the London City Council change with kaleidoscopic rapidity. Last night's meeting of the aldermen revealed still another phase of the question. For reasons which must now be pretty apparent to the public, though far from satisfactory, and in fact a trifle childish, the Council resolved to upset the whole of its labors in arranging for buying an electric light plant, and decided to continue the present system of lighting the city by contract.

In order to understand the true inwardness of the situation, it is necessary to refer to a few civic happenings within the past twelve or fourteen months. Last summer the City Council began to consider the question of purchasing an electric light plant of its own. Towards the end of the year, almost at the eleventh hour, several aldermen, led by Ald. Boyd, were seized with the idea that the city would lose much if it did not proceed with the immediate purchase of a plant. A move was made in the Council having that object in view. The Advertiser, in the interests of the taxpayers, opposed any such precipitate action being taken by a dying Council, and the majority of the aldermen voted that the question be left for settlement by the new Board. During the early part of the year the Council was occupied with the question of the amalgamation of London South with the city, and the members of the Board who most strongly favored the speedy purchase of a plant last year failed to make any special effort to promote the scheme. After amalgamation, however, the agitation was renewed, and under the assumption that they would be better able to judge of the merits of the respective systems if they saw them in operation, a portion of the Council went on a tour of inspection in other cities. Then followed the calling for tenders, and finally, ten days ago, the awarding of the tender to the Royal Company, which has for some time supplied the city with a portion of its street lights.

Not an obstacle was thrown in the way of the purchase of an electric light plant then—not one of the aldermen suggested that there were either legal or financial difficulties in the way. That drawback seems to have been an after-thought, but whether well or ill founded, it was sprung at the special meeting of the Council last night, and by a majority of one accepted as a valid excuse for once more withdrawing from the resolution to purchase a plant, and reverting to the lighting of the streets by tender.

The wicked Water Commissioners, it seems, are at the bottom of it all. Now, no one to look at either Chairman Davis, Commissioner Essery or Mayor Taylor would believe that they would plot to frustrate the wise decisions of so grave a body of men as the aldermen of London. The Water Commissioners may make mistakes, but they are not so foolish as to believe that unnecessary antagonism to the other civic rulers would be justifiable. What is the grievance of the charge made against the Water Commissioners? Last year, the commissioners sent to the Council a statement of money required for waterworks expenditures during 1890, the sum called for being $70,000. After that, they point out, the Council promoted and had passed through the Legislature a bill for the amalgamation of London South with the city and other purposes, which, while imposing new liabilities on the Water Commissioners, provided for the borrowing by the Council of $130,000 to meet those expenses. But, argued the aldermen, the commissioners only asked for $70,000. We will give them that amount, and keep the remainder to buy an electric light plant. Months ago the aldermen asked the commissioners to agree to this modus vivendi, but the commissioners would have none of it. They pointed out that $70,000 would have been enough of money with which to make ordinary extensions, and it might not take so very much more to accomplish what they now are committed to but they do not mean to take any chances. They will finish their work originally resolved on, as well as the extensions called for by the act of Legislature, passed at the instance of the Council, as economically as possible and then hand over the balance to the civic treasury.

This seems to be a reasonable enough proposition, but the majority of the aldermen, declining to agree to it, the commissioners have proceeded with their work, accepted the $70,000 raised for them by law, and are retaining the receipts for water rates, ordinarily going into the civic treasury, to make good the balance, if need be. It would have been better if the Council had raised the whole of the $130,000 by the issue of debentures.

Then the citizens would only have been called upon to pay the interest and sinking fund this year, and they would have had the receipts from water rates—amounting last year, after paying running expenses, to about $40,000—to apply towards a reduction of taxes. The Council have taken another and as it now admits a less tenable position.

The remarkable feature of the embroglio is the fact that the Council knew of every detail of the difficulty which the majority of the aldermen now profess to regard as being an effective barrier to the purchase of an electric light plant weeks ago. Yet they deliberately went to work to call for tenders, to consider tenders, and to make a selection from these tenders without once suggesting that there was any obstacle to the carrying out of the work. Such a course can scarcely be justified. Would the objection have been raised had the Ball Company, instead of the Royal, received the contract? The opinion of the taxpayers generally seems to be that it would not. A means would have been discovered to get over it.

As it is, we fear that the result of the fiasco will be that if the Council ever solves upon again calling for tenders for an electric light plant reputable outside companies will refuse to have anything to do with it. An outcome so prejudicial to the interests of the people may not be what the Council majority desired, but that is most likely to be the effect of the recent vote.

THE WORLD DOES NOT BACKWARD.

The summer is over, and the ally season, yet to come, is ended. The ally season is that comparatively leisurely time of year when, there being less pressure of important subjects upon public attention, newspaper space is largely filled with alarmist articles, in which all sorts of national evils are fancied and feared. In the lurid light they cast upon the future, organizations of workmen appear as a hostile army awfully arrayed, governments are overthrown, anarchy reigns, the country goes to the bow-wow.

And yet it remains true that changelessness is death, that change is life, that stubborn wickedness is not the only quality in human nature to be depended on, that for every labor dispute in which workmen have been in the wrong another might be found in which employers were not less wrong; that for every specimen of violent and unreasonable language used by advocates of popular rights a quotation just as selfish and senseless could be culled from the utterances of their so-called superiors; and that a love of truth and justice is common to all classes of society.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—The Toronto Exhibition has been a gratifying success. It is a splendidly managed affair, and well deserves its great popularity.

—The Methodist Conference thinks preachers and Sunday school and day school teachers are likely to set a better example as non-smokers. As to teachers, they mostly are non-smokers. They are nearly all women.

—A London clergyman who recently visited Premier Mercier at his charming home in Quebec says that Mr. Mercier assured him that Mr. Fitzpatrick, the brilliant young Montreal barrister, would soon be called to take a place in the Government of the Province.

—There is hope for William Tell yet. Collections are being taken up in Switzerland to which the Swiss Government has contributed to erect a monument upon the place in Airold where he made his famous apple shot. Let us hope that the monument will have a better foundation than the story.

—Ontario has enough minerals in its northern territory to make the Province one of the great mining regions of the world. All that is needed is an extended market for its products. Then capitalists will not hesitate to invest their money and develop the riches, to the great advantage of all classes of the community.

—Three years is the longest term a Methodist Minister can remain in one church, though this is tempered in cities somewhat by the ministers going from one congregation to another in the same city. An attempt has been made to lengthen the pastorate, where mutually satisfactory, to four years, but the General Conference has sat down on it by a majority of 131 to 104. The lengthened pastorate may carry next year.

—Grip of this week contains a cartoon, on the subject of the Equal Rights movement, representing a meeting between Prof. Goldwin Smith and Principal Caven. One, with a faraway look, addresses to the other the query—"Have you seen anything of McCarthy?" McCarthy's co-operation with the gentlemen named will probably not be so unanimous as it was when the interests of the MacDonald Government were not at stake.

—Ben. Butterworth, the distinguished Congressman, who has been a strong advocate in favor of freer trade relations with Canada, is about to retire from public life. He declines re-election for the district of Cincinnati on the ground that he cannot afford to spend more of his time in public life. His family. Butterworth's retirement will be a loss to the Republican party.

—Large gatherings of their constituents welcomed Hon. Messrs. Dryden and Harcourt, the new Ontario Ministers, to their homes yesterday, the former at Whitby, the latter at Welland. Both received addresses and were heartily welcomed by assemblies, embracing members of both political parties. An especially pleasant feature of the reception to Hon. Mr. Harcourt was the speech by Warden Hobson, of Welland county. In an extremely felicitous address, Mr. Hobson announced himself a Conservative.

—The London Advertiser invites the Conservative Government to "bring on the election." There seems to be an idea growing among the Liberals in the West that it is a long time between lickings—(Montreal).

Yes, it is a month or two since the 5th of June, when the Liberals of Ontario performed a feat of licking that was highly satisfactory to them; and it is a month or two since the opponents of Toryism in Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick figured to advantage in a similar way. The Liberals of the West rather enjoy these lickings; and the Montreal Tory organ rightly interprets their feelings; it is a long time between lickings. The Liberals desire to lick the common enemy, as Mr. Meredith once said of the people who failed to agree with him, some more. The Dominion general elections cannot be too soon brought on.

but not out of place in that gathering. Mr. Harcourt, he said, was a true and upright man, and as a fellow-citizen, although a political opponent, he could but tender his best expressions of good-will and joy at his attainment to the high and honorable office he had reached.

—Under a recently-passed Act of the Ontario Legislature municipal councils have now power, subject to a popular vote, to pass bylaws prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors within their bounds. The first township to take advantage of the law is Lunenburg in the eastern county of the same name. The township came under license after the repeal of the Scott Act, but at the earliest opportunity the voters, by a majority of 105, have declared in favor of prohibition. The temperance ladies gave special support to the leaders in the movement.

—The wars of the future will probably be marked by a general adoption of smokeless and noiseless powder, with increased range and rapidity of firing, rifles, machine guns and artillery; with balloons provided with electrical apparatus for communication from without with a blockaded fortress; with nailless horse shoes which can be rapidly adjusted by the riders; with a very largely increased capacity of railroads for the transportation of stores, and with all the other aids of recent inventions. But war will not be rendered less horrible and brutal thereby.

The Liberals desire to lick the common enemy, as Mr. Meredith once said of the people who failed to agree with him, some more. The Dominion general elections cannot be too soon brought on.

—Owing to long holidays and the general indisposition to activity during the hot season the working year of the church is limited to six or eight months. With half a year to do a year's work in, and half an hour on Sunday in which to speak effectively to the whole of his congregation, the preacher has need to strengthen and direct his forces. The ability to see what ought to be done, and to find and control the best people to do it, the instinct to bring subordinates into line with the work before them, and to see that it is accomplished—these are the qualities in a minister that "sell," and that are quite as important as good preaching. The churches are judged by their results. Not less heart, but more head, is in some cases required to make their power felt.

OTHER NEWSPAPERS.

SELF-SINKERS.
Atlanta Constitution.
In extolling the magnanimity of his candidate a partisan calls him a "self-sunk man." It is a pet phrase. Where one man sinks another, ten men sink themselves. Rumors, cards, high living, overwork, submerge thousands who, by temperance and honesty, would be for years "in the swim."

IMPROVING THE WAY.
Chicago Tribune.
Putting a positive on wheels and trundling it about the country to gratify the longing of the bees for a change of scene and to prevent them from swarming in the happy thought that has struck apiarists in California and been put in practice. There is nothing like the boundless West for these ideas.

APPROVAL FROM THE SEASIDE.
Halifax, N. S., Chronicle.
The London Advertiser is busy advocating "compulsory voting," and argues that a law should be passed at the next session of Parliament rendering it obligatory upon every qualified voter to poll his vote under penalty of losing it. There are many important considerations that might be urged in favor of Mr. VERTISER's contention. Among others, the present system affords room for manipulation by bribery and otherwise, to keep opposing electors from voting at all, and thus the voice of the country is smothered. Again, many of the most honest and intelligent citizens refrain from voting, which is an undignified public loss. Yet it cannot be denied that there are difficulties in the way of such a change of the law.

A Sure Cure for Dyspepsia

A Medical Triumph! A Very Bad Case!

HOW THE HEALTH OF ONE OF BELLEVILLE'S CITIZENS WAS RESTORED.

Remarkable Cure of Dropsy and Dyspepsia.

Mr. SAMUEL T. CASEY, Belleville, writes: "In the spring of 1884 I began to be troubled with Dyspepsia, which gradually became more and more distressing. I used various domestic remedies, and applied to my physician, but received no benefit. By this time my trouble assumed the form of Dropsy. I was unable to use any food whatever, except boiled milk and bread; my limbs were swollen to twice their natural size; all hopes of my recovery were given up, and I quite expected death within a few weeks. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY having been recommended to me, I tried a bottle with but little hope of relief; and now, after using eight bottles, my Dyspepsia and Dropsy are cured. Although now seventy-nine years of age, I can enjoy my meals as well as ever, and my general health is good. I am well known in this section of Canada, having lived here fifty-seven years; and you have liberty to use my name in recommendation of your VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, which has done such wonders in my case."

DYSPEPSIA VANQUISHED.

Mr. JAMES JOHNSTON, 4th con., 7th lot, Amherst, writes: "Two bottles of NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY cured me of Dyspepsia. Mine was a bad case and I had tried a number of other preparations without getting any benefit from them."

Dyspepsia Had to Go.

Mr. W. J. DEVELL, Wingham, carpenter and builder, writes: "Three years ago I was greatly troubled with Dyspepsia; a pain between my shoulders was so bad that I thought I would have to quit work altogether. No medicine gave me ease until I got a bottle of NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, which gave me relief. I continued using the medicine until I had taken three bottles, when I was perfectly well. I consider it invaluable as a cure for Dyspepsia. I know of several persons who have used it with the same benefit."
