EATING OF CARROTS MAKES EYES PRETTY

Oranges and Spinach Also Help, Says Ophthalmologist.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.-Eat carrots, oranges, spinach and butter for pretty eyes. This was one of the bits of advice given at the 26th annual meeting of Bellevue-Stratford. About a thousand specialists in the treatment of the eye, nose, throat and ear from this country, and visitors from abroad are in attendance.

the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Oto-Laryngology in the Dr. Percy H. Fridenberg of New York said: "It is probable that pigment plays an important part in the normal development of the eye, ear and brain, but pigment is largely a product of food. "It is a striking fact that such things as butter, oranges, spinach and other highly-colored goods contain vitamines, and which prevent certain deficiency diseases. Among these de-scurvy. "Vitamines, pigments and the normal production of certain salts go hand in hand. Just what the connection is we do not know as yet. There is a offspring, so there is not a normal pigment in the eye. This means there is not a uniform distribution of the

Prof. J. Van der Hoeve, Leiden, Hol-land, the guest of the academy, told of his investigations in connection with the lack of pigment in the eye and leading to blindness with similar ment distribution in the ear, leading to
