WHY NOT?

You have corns, warts, bunions, moles or cancer. Why are they not cured? You ask a reasonable question. It demands a candid answer. You have it here: You bought a corn cure. You thought you had Barkwell's, but it was not the genuine; you got a counterfeit. It was no more use than water. You missed the sale of what you wanted. So far, it is your money gone; your money goes too. You get another and think it is the genuine. You have made a mistake and we are in disgrace.
More of your money is gone; more of our money is gone. Your corns are no better; our reputation no better. You make up your mind they cannot be cured. We have lost a customer.
You have got hold of the wrong end of the fact.
You have got hold of the wrong bottle. Both our money is gone. Not only our money is gone, but our opinions of one another are wrong.
We don't know you by sight or name. You don't know us. We think how dull you are to get an imitation when you might as well get Barkwell's Sure Corn Cure. And you think what looks like the genuine of that corn cure is to be had so. Let's get acquainted with one another. Let's get acquainted with Barkwell's Sure Corn Cure. The manufacturer is not the unhandsome name you call him by. And you can't help it. Come on, everybody, make handsome. Nobody ever loses a cent by getting Barkwell's Sure Corn Cure, but they always lose a corn. We never have any trouble except from these infernal counterfeiters. Neither do you with Barkwell's Sure Corn Cure.

dustry. His knowledge of horned cattle was remarkable, and he dealt somewhat extensively in them. His untiring industry, aided by business capacity enabled him to amass a competency. He bore with great fortitude his last and almost only il-ness, from which he suffered for a couple of years. He leaves a wife and five children to enjoy the fruits of his toil and mourn his loss.—Com.

The Dutton Advance says:—"Miss

Minnie Hunsford, who but four weeks ago came to this village from London with her mother to make it their future home, died on Tuesday morning. Her illness was but of two weeks' duration and though making good progress toward recovery, she Monday suffered a relapse and despite the efforts of medical skill in a few hours afterwards breathed her last. The deceased was only in her 22nd year, just on the threshold of life, when the slender thread of life before her reached her final typical fever. In this bereavement, which is the third within a year, the family have the sympathy of the village." The remains
