"SCOTT," THE MISSING OUTLAW

Wanted for the Ardnamoan Mystery, Surrendered, But is Released.

LONDON, April 6.—The mysterious and long missing man known as "Scott," who was jointly indicted with Alfred John Monson for the killing of Lieut Ham-brough, which crime has become known as the "Ardnamoan mystery," surrendered himself yesterday to the police.

"Scott" had been sought after by the police ever since the investigation into the death of Lieut Ham-brough commenced, and a reward was offered for his capture. As "Scott" did not appear when Monson was tried at Edinburgh recently, the missing man was declared an outlaw. Upon this witness the whole solution of the mystery surrounding the death of the lieutenant seemed to hinge, and when Monson was tried for murder and the jury rendered a verdict of "not guilty," the police continued their search for "Scott."

In the murder trial the evidence of "Scott" would have proved of the greatest importance, as that man, known as a frequenter of race-courses, etc., was the man who was first found in the woods at Ardnamoan. In any case, on the day when he was shot and killed, Monson, "Scott," and the lieutenant were out shooting together and the latter never returned.

On Jan. 10 last, the police issued the warrant which had been issued for the arrest of "Scott," and a new search was made. It was said that Monson received the following letter from the missing man:

"Now that the excitement of your trial has subsided, I intend to give myself up. I see by the papers that you are publishing a book. I send you my diary, that I have kept since I left Ardnamoan. It will, I doubtless interest, astonish or amuse the public."

"Scott," whose real name is Ted Sweeney, was subsequently released. He has prepared a series of articles dealing with his own part in the mystery. They will be published in the Pall Mall Gazette, which newspaper has undertaken to defend him against any charges that may be brought against him. Sweeney is also engaged to appear at the trial of Alfred John Monson for the murder of Lieut Ham-brough.

When one travels he "got there" not only speedily, but safely and luxuriously. He wants to be surrounded by every appliance devised to secure safety and comfort. He wants to ride rapidly and smoothly, he wants pure air and freedom from dust, he wants elegant and artistic seats, the comfort and tastefulness of the parlor; he wants luxurious and comfortable sleeping quarters; he wants lightening speed through arduous landscapes; in a word, he requires all the modern conveniences of a motor car. The experienced traveler goes by the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, and enjoys the perfection of travel.
