bonclusion of the officers; he said he could a been glad wee had been capable to have proceeded; but confented to their coming zhoard, and faid the boats should be fent ashore before day. That night weekept a very itrong and firite watch, Lacquainted the fouldiers of their coming aboard; after midnight feveral of the commanders defired wee might remove our army nearer to the place where we were to goe off, accordingly wee filently marched off the ground, carryed back our guns; when I had taken care that wee had left none behind, I went to the place where they were ordered to march, found our fouldiers too many of them upon the heach ready to goe off if there had been an opportunity; I caused them to be drawn up upon the upland adjoining, and put them in a posture for service if they had been attacked by the eneiny, for wee were within fight and hearing of the town. Before day the boats began to row affiore, but focimany of our men drew off without orders, that they might be ready to get in with the first, I forefeeing the confusion that was like to be, and perceiving there would not be time beforeit was light to get all off, I fent the boats all away and would not let any goe off at that time.

The rith day, being foe near as to near them calling one to another at the town, their drumming and ringing before day; and other noises in the woods, that wee had reason to thinke they intended that day to come out against us with their whole flrength; in the morning they fired feveral great gun; at us but did us no harm. Defigning to goe off that night, and there being like to be a good opportunity, I called several of the officers and acquainted them that I was defigned to fend three parties of fouldiers to beat up the swamps that were round us, and beat off thefe spies that we had reason to judge lay near us, accordingly ordered three 16 files to be detached out of the feveral companies, and fent them out commanded by Capt. Barnet, and Capt. Minot, and that party that was fent out upon our right wing were foon engaged; fent Capt. March forthwith, who had a good company, and they then foon made the enemy give back, but they continued firing brifkly at each other; I fent out feveral companys to relieve them, in the mean time not knowing but this party might have been sent to occasion the drawing off a great part of our forces, and they might have a greater strength near us; wherefore I fent out to make discovery, and flood ready with the rest of the army to fight them if they had come up with us. The souldiers were ordered to keep firing at the enemy, in and about the fwamps near us and where they faw the enemy unatil it was dark, which accordingly they dida

It then growing near night, I ordered the fick men to be caried aboard, which might be done by day light; because two or, three boats might goe off well enough unsuspected. That day, Alexander-Smart. came after with a commission to be master. gunner, and had 52 feamen under his command for to attend the guns. A little before night, I called him, and acquainted him that the army was to goe off that night, and gave him a charge about the guns, in particular ordered that three guns thould goe off before any men went, or withthe first, the other should be let alone to the last, and kept for to defend the souldiers if there had been occasion, and to be put aboard, the last boats, which might be soon done; he made answer; that though he was the last man aboard, he would see all the guns off; I parted with him then, and never see him afterwards that I knew of: I then acquainted Major Savage and other officers, that we would draw off half each regiment at a time, and he should draw off half his regiment first, and ordered that those that went in the first boats should be helpfull to draw down those three guns that were to go first aboard. which they did, and concluded they were gene aboard. It growing very dark, note withstanding I had ordered the officers to keep the fouldiers to their arms, many precipitately and diforderly drew down to the beach, four times more than had leave. and a very great noise was made, which I was-much troubled at, and was willing to go down to fee if I could ftill them; I called to Major Ward, ordered him he should do what he could to keep the fouldiers to their arms, and not to move with out order, which he foon fourie too hard for him to doe; I ordered fome fouldiers to keep the rest from crowding down until those were gone off that were upon the flatts; I called to them to be filent, but either of these were little regarded, for the crowd and the noise both increased; the feamen calling out for such fouldiers as belonged to their vessels, and the souldiers for fuch boats as came from the veffels they belonged to, hundreds in the water up to the knees and higher, pressing into boats, the seamen and they contending, by reason whereof I fee boats were like to be five times longer a loading than they needed; I faw a necessity of my going off to the boats, went aboard a small boat belonging to Mr. Winfer, commanded filence, ordered the boats to take the men in, as they came, and to carry them to the first vessels they came at, which was not minded by many, but as I was forced to got from PROC
