Dear Sir Arthur,

I have just read your very kind remarks about me in the Gazette and hasten to send this note of thanks and assurance.

I fully appreciate, Sir Arthur, the highly prized nature of this degree and how well the College has guarded it in the past, as about twenty only have been awarded during Wesley's entire existence. I, therefore, trust you will be assured that, in receiving it, I feel it is not for what I may have accomplished but what is expected of me in the future; and it will be a pleasure to earn it. "The greatest joy in work lies in work itself."
