ly enjoyed by the publ's.

Dr. James L. Hughes, who first spoke to a similar assembly 47 years ago, was on hand to address the school, and his pleasant remarks added considerably to the enjoyment of the afternoon.

In speaking to the 70 pupils whose efficiency for high school work had been determined from their standing thrucut the past year, and who were lucky enough to escape the agonizing sensation of trying the "entrance axams." Dr. Hughes said: "I wish to congratulate the school board on its success in abolishing this custom of entrance examinations, which is a blight on education and which has entrance examinations, which is ablight on education and which has hindered pupils for so many years."

Dr. Hughes stated that 14 years ago England had succeeded in abolishing the practice of determining pupils' standing in elementary schools by means of yearly examination papers.

Some New Things About Citrus Fruits

Since citrus fruits are becoming more plentiful and lower in price each season, we are learning new facts and finding new uses for them. At this season we are particularly interested in lemons, as they are cheaper now than at any other time of year and very cooling and wholesome. This is a good time to make lemon syrup for use later, for, tho the bottled lemon juice is now on every market, it is not so reasonable in price nor so rich as the home made article.

You will need six pounds of loaf sugar to each dozen lemons. Grate the yellow outer rind from the fruit and put it with the sugar, add one quart of water to each pound of sugar and let this boil until it is a thin syrup. If scum rises remove it. Stir in the juice of the lemons and boil ten minutes longer.

This should be bottled while hot and kept in a cool place. When making lemonade with this use one-third syrup to two-thirds ice water. It is also used in lemon outstarts and the formula.

In should be bottled white hot and kept in a cool place. When thaking lemonade with this use one-third syrup to two-thirds ice water. It is also used in lemon custards and for flavoring.

An interesting new discovery has been made by Professor Goldwaite of Illinois University, regarding orange and lemon jellies. He frequently noticed that well made orange and lemon marmalade showed a jelly-like appearance denoting that there must be some jelly-making substance (pectin) in these fruits. The alcohol test applied to the juices showed its entire absence, but the pectin was finally located in the white inner, bitter skin of the fruit and after many experiments he found orange, lemon and other citrus fruit jellies could be made by first extracting the jelly substance from the white lining. This is done by grinding the lining to tiny bits with a food chopper and then soaking it in tepid water twenty-four hours and finally cooking it until it becomes a soft, pulpy mass. Strain this and add the liquor to the fruit juices and proceed as with any jelly. There is little if any bitter faste to the jellies made in this way, so do not use an excess of sugar.

A correspondent writes to ask if orange marmalade is ever made by the sunshine method as some fruit preserves are? Can any reader of this department answer this query?

The California fruit grower advises using a slice of lemon in every jar of cherries and small berries canned this season to improve the flavor. And that the juice of one lemon to a half a teaspoon of soda equals the finest baking powder in the market; mix the soda with the flour and the lemon juice with the liquids.

Other new hints for lemons are: One teaspoon of lemon inceremoves rust.

With the liquids.

Other new hints for lemons are; One teaspoon of lemon juice to each quart of dried fruit will be found an improvement. Lemon juice removes rust, fruit and mildew stains from white goods. Do it this way: Moisten the goods with cold water and lay in hot sun and squeeze a few drops of lemon juice on the spot; for iron rust, sprinkle a little sait on the lemon juice. For mildew soak the stains in soap suds containing starch and make a paste of starch and cold water and spread it thickly on each side of the goods and sprinkle it with lemon juice. Place in sun and moisten with more lemon as often as it dries. In a few minutes this treatment will have drawn out the spots.

Everyone knows how refreshing lemon is in tea, but few have used it in black coffee; it is very fine and is said to be a corrective for billousness.

Fortunately for us, Toronto is not yet so infested with apartment houses that back yards are out of date. The average home owner still takes a wonderful pride in his garden, and while we have real back gardens, our children are reasonably sure of a sufe playground. But how the street lures! If it is only on the front steps in a blazing sun or on a neighbor's verandah, stified by awnings, it is vastly more pleasurable to the infants than their own back yard, however shady and inviting.

As a general rule, a child should be allowed to be as active as he wishes. Many mothers think it wise to suppress their children in play. I do not understand this suppression when a child is healthy. The given explanation is, that the lively child runs until overheated and then catches cold getting cooled off. Yet it is a fact that children are much more apt to take cold when they do not get the proper amount of exercise than when they are allowed to run and play as they and becomes listless because he has first beauty place among the spring no change in surroundings. Do You See Those Thin Spaces?

Genial warmth all over the house, all the winter time, at least expense—that's what those water spaces (sections) would mean to you if you put a Safford heating system in vour home.

You would call them big, covered water "pans." They're shallow enough to let the water heat quickly, and flow by the shortest way out of the "pans" into the radiators.

If you had four of these big "pans" to heat, one above the other, you would have them made and arranged (if you had studied the problem scientifically) just the way they are in the Safford.

Boilers Radiators

are, you see, built by a company with 30 years experience. The Dominion Radiator Company makes nothing but hot water and steam heating systems, specializing in this line.

The arrows in the picture show you how the heat travels in the Safford hot water boiler. You see how the heat en-countersthe first pan straight from the centre of the fire where it is hottest. The heat goes straight against the second pan, straight against the third and the fourth. All of it is absorbed quickly, surely, and sent coursing through the radiators.

In the Safford System the heat units given off by the coal are absorbed by the water and take the shortest route to the radiators, and, conse-

ently, less heat-energy is quired than if the water had to travel a much longer route, as it does in ordina boilers. The less heat-energy red, the less fuel con-
