THE REFERENDUM VS. REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT.

Would the adoption of the referendum be a natural constitutional growth or an innovation inconsistent with our constitution? asks a U. S. paper. Would it be a mechanical or an organic change; an apt remedy for new maladies; a measure consistent with democracy, or an institution fitted for a wholly different set of circumstances from ours?

The answers to these questions may be decisive for those who are open-minded and free of prejudice. They are of more importance than information as to how the referendum works in Switzerland. This is the judgment of Sir John Macdonald of England, as expressed in an article in The Living Age for May 23, reprinted from The Contemporary Review.

The true referendum of the eminent English jurist defines as the power of the body of electors to reserve to themselves the right of proposing and enacting laws or of rejecting them independently of the legislature, or of approving or rejecting any act passed by the legislature. It may be obligatory or optional; applicable to all questions or to some. It may, as in some American states, be in terms inapplicable to emergency legislation; it may be confined to amendments in the written constitution. It may be set in motion by a small number of electors, or it may be subject to conditions which render the use of it rare.

THE DEADLY BATHTUB.

We who take our tub as a duty, our hot bath as a religious rite, and our Turkish cleaning as a sacrament, may no longer be an aristocracy. Our foundations of hot and cold, soap and scrub are assailed. The "fourber" of a new aristocracy. The "fourber" of a new aristocracy.

Growing Wheat on Mountain Sides. Outside of west China, it is doubtful if there are many places in the world where one will find cultivated fields on the steep mountain sides 7000 and 8000 feet above sea level and 5000 to 6000 feet above the floors of the valleys. In the mountains, there are patches of ground, ranging in size from the top of an ordinary dining table to a plot about 100 feet square.

Known Them. A dried up old colonel and a very sentimental young lady were together watching the sunset. She inquired gushingly, "Oh, colonel, don't you love Longfellow's poems?" "Can't say I do," he replied. "Never read them, in fact. Consider all poets absolutely driven."

EACH MEAL AN AGONY

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cure Obsolete Indigestion After Other Medicines Fail. "When I was first troubled with indigestion, I did not bother with it. I thought it would pass away, but it grew into a painful chronic affection, which in spite of all I did grew worse and worse, until I had abandoned all hopes of ever getting relief."
