It is with the wreckage of an army that Ludendorff and Hindenburg now have to meet the situation. The morale of the German soldiers is dropping lower every day, and the story of a whole post of frontier guards turning off the electric current in the wires and skipping over the border into Holland circulated freely, and there is no

Citizens may test their own standard of public or civic morality these days by their observance of the world. There has rarely been such military honor done any body of men in history as the selection of the Canadian corps to locate the German line, first in the south, and then again almost immediately further north, in the splendid thrust against the Drocourt-Queant line.

None but the gamest kind of men could stand such exertions, but their spirit is indomitable, and they have earned the highest military praise. The breed tells, and the United States troops now fighting beyond days by their observance of the vol-

They, too, are game, and the Germans will be glad to relinquish the Ladles' road if the Americans demand it.

The Germans for the most part have not game blood. The best of them have been slaughtered at the behest of their unsportsmanlike kalser. Those who remain are of the mongred type. They know they are beaten, and like a whipped cur, with its tail between its legs, they are glad to run their backs and criticize the measure proposed to run or to turn on their backs and criticize the measure proposed that if it were carried in its present the breach in the Drocourt-Queant. Hundred Dollars Result of First Day.

Enthusiasm and the determination to make Sailors' Week Campaign the most successful ever launched in Toronto were the notes that ran thru the addresses given in connection with the reporting of returns of the first day's work of the campaign.

A. M. Hobberlin presided at the luncheon which preceded the reports, and a short address was given by Rev. Wm. Patterson, who pointed out that the safety of the empire was due to the preparedness and adequacy of the British navy. The "contemptible army" was ready but not adequate, said the speaker. The war would have been short if the navy had been in the same position. The mercantile in the same position. The mercantile marine had carried over food, rifles and men. To make adequate provision for the dependents of these men was the plea of Mr. Patterson and of the campaign.

The chairman regretted that, owing to some mistake, the number of captains present id not really represent the number of teams. Misunderstanding had arisen about the place and hour of giving in returns. Returns will be given in each day at 6.30 at the Cafe Royal. East King
