

MAJOR COATSWORTH AND CONTROLLER SHAW PASS IT UP AT FIRST WARD CONSERVATIVE MEETING.

It was abundantly clear from the proceedings at First Ward Liberal-Conservative Association annual meeting in Dingman's Hall last night that the only two matters of importance in the affections of Mayor Coatsworth and his chief supporters, Controller Jones and the city fathers present, were up for what he rightly described as the question far and away above others in importance, Mayor Coatsworth did not even mention it. The only two matters of civic importance he said were the trunk sewer and the Yonge-street bridge.

Controller Jones alluded to the city fathers present, but for what he rightly described as the question far and away above others in importance, Mayor Coatsworth did not even mention it. The only two matters of civic importance he said were the trunk sewer and the Yonge-street bridge.

Several gentlemen threw down the gauntlet to the controllers, Ald. Dunn was the first, and Ald. Fleming and H. C. Hocken, editor of The Orange Standard, followed. Where Work was heard.

John R. Humphrey called the meeting to order as president of the association. No election having occurred during the year there was nothing special to report upon. It had been a strenuous time for the patronage committee, however, and there had been considerable work in that department. He had heard some complaints, but they had done the best they could. No matter how good or how strong a committee was it could not expect a full and complete report on the matter.

Thomas Gearing was moved to the chair to conduct the election, which he acknowledged as a compliment to Ward Two. E. Kemp, M.P., R. R. Davis and Ald. Dunn were appointed scrutineers. Mayor Coatsworth was cordially received. He thought it a fine thing to have a little of the best of the city in January. (Laughter.) The Yonge-street bridge was no longer to be laughed at his worship assured them. The Globe had objected to the building of the trunk sewer, but he wanted the trunk sewer as badly as anything, and they must not allow themselves to be argued out of supporting it, but they should shoulder in carrying it thru.

Hon. Dr. Pyne, who was received with cheers on entering, desired to know the official position of the city government in Mayor Coatsworth's compliments. Dr. Pyne upheld the policy of liberality to the university, and the technical education should be supported by large grants from the Dominion.

The Way of the Voter. A. E. Kemp, M.P., was delighted with the enthusiastic gathering before him, which contrasted strikingly with the apathy he had observed in other places, as he had gone up and down the length and breadth of the country. He found many professional men, who did not take the trouble to vote at the polls, who complained by questions were not discussed on their merits. There was too much destructive criticism. When was a point was touched upon, critics should be prepared with a solution of the question at issue.

Controller Shaw thought the Yonge-street bridge should be disposed of as the council had decided. He feared and respected the press, and did not wish to lose its influence. He thought the reporters who attended the council meetings should write the editorial articles, and not men who knew nothing of the trunk sewer or the Yonge-street bridge questions.

The Power Question. Cheap power was also attracting the attention of the people and of the council, but it was a question that had to be dealt with in a business-like way. While he would like to see the question of cheap power submitted at an early date, he doubted the wisdom of complicating matters by bringing too many questions before the people.

Controller Jones would place one question and any above others in importance—it was that of cheap power. He was glad to see Dr. Pyne there and he should be proud to have him as the member of the government that placed legislation on the statute book enabling the province and the city to obtain cheap power from Niagara. He was in favor of the bill on the subject, but on Jan. 1, enabling the city to make a contract with the hydro-electric commission for the supply of power, and he was sure when submitted it would be unanimously supported by the ratepayers.

He hoped that owing to the power obtained from the Whiting government by the city council Ashbridge's dam would soon show signs of improvement. Controller Hubbard always gave the
