Oats—The same feature to-day, as last week, was apparent, namely, that a large amount of oats were for sale at 36½c. There seems to be a certain interest scalping the market on a line of one or two million bushels between 36c and 36½c. Provisions—January pork was given a further twist to-day. The price was marked up to 19.35, and January lard to 10.40. We do not see how the shorts in May pork and lard will be much better off than those in January. The situation still a stranger is seen weight.

But even weeks and for him to say it is simply to lation was preserved. But even weeks before the introduction of this legislation into the House, it was announced casually (University of Toronto Monthly, Feb., 1901, p 178) that the university authorities had then offer-lated the lease to the fraternities when the lease to the fraternities when the professed to desire to have the fraternities upon the campus in order the better to supervise them: inversit authorities had then offered to lease to the fraternities upon most favorable terms a portion of the university property. Terms and the university property. Terms and sites, therefore, it appears, were fixed before the legislation, and the act to all intents and purposes might as well have provided that free sites be granted to four Greek letter societies. It was in fact discovered presently the definition of the fraternities upon the campus in order the better to supervise them: and in the next breath admitted that he had taken in respect of the fraternities upon the campus in order the better to supervise them: and in the next breath admitted that he had taken in respect of the fraternities upon the campus in order the better to supervise them: and in the next breath admitted that he had taken in respect of the fraternities upon the campus in order the better to supervise them: and in the next breath admitted that he had taken in respect of the fraternities upon the campus in order the better to supervise them: and in the next breath admitted that he had taken in respect of the fraternities upon the campus in order the better to supervise them: and in the next breath admitted that he had taken in respect of the fraternity now on the campus no steps to that end. He denied that these were wealthy students in Toronto; by this, if he means that there is no granted to four Greek letter societies. It was in fact discovered presently that these societies consisted of graduates as well as undergraduates; accordingly the legislature, in 1902, amended the above wording to read, "incorporated societies of graduates of, but it had not been patronized societies of graduates of, but it had not been patronized societies of graduates sufficiently to warrant its maintenties. None of the poorer students in Toronto in my day could afford to pay more than $3.25, and President Loudon, I fancy, knows this well. He attempts, moreover, virtually to cast responsibility on the legislature by saying that the trustees is least the land that the trustees in leasing the land had acted entirely within their powers given by the University Act: I have noted that the university authorities first struck the arrangement with the fraternities, and then sought the necessary power, under concealed form, from the legislature. One scarcely knows whether one should discuss at all the president's argument that the lands set aside for the fraternities encroach in no way on the site set aside for a college residence, and when the latter is built (when??) the societies may come into it ave the societies may come into it. Aye, the societies which rebelled against discipline in the old college residence and rather than submit to it left that residence and so helped it to its fall, charges in it averaged $1 a week for room and $3 for board (it was com-

whether the societies are secret, should cease? What difference can it make whether they are secret or not? They might conduct their ceremonies, if they have any, in Queen's Park with the diminishing or increasing a particle their claims for these favors. Let the authorities face the real issues:

1. Why has land been given away and money loaned at a low rate when there is not money enough to pro-vide for immediate needs? 2. Why is this done in the interest of a small number of students who constitute a class by themselves, selecting who are to be members of their society? These students are in the main the more wealthy or the less poor, so that there is a double discrimination.

3. Why are the privileges of the fraternity houses, i.e. the permanent privileges, such as continuous residence in the house, to be enjoyed by graduates who are engaged in the city and have no actual connection with the work of the university?

4. Why is this done for societies whose tendency is not to foster general university spirit, but the exclusive spirit of the "set"?

GREEK LETTER SOCIETIES,

Editor World: I have read with much interest the recent articles which have your invitation, as the subject appears to be one of much interest to all gradgood results of the Greek Letter socilittle can be adduced in their favor so far as Toronto University is concerned. For in this, as in many other matters, United States cannot with any degree of accuracy be cited as affording precedents. The circumstances there are in most cases entirely different. In many of the universities of the United States nearly all the undergraduates are members of one or other of the Greek Letter fraternities, and by treating all alike comparatively little or no injustice is done. But in the present case it seems that the university authorities appear disposed to grant important and exclusive privileges to some four fraternities, and this for the benefit of a comparatively It you want to borrow money on nousehold goods pianos, organs, horses and wagons, call and see us. What advantage is likely to be reaped from their action by ninety-five per cent. of the stu-dents? Is the university (so sorely in need of funds) making a wise use of its resources in providing convenient and comfortable quarters for a handful considerate treatment of the handful likely to make them more liberal or democratic, or better citizens? It has been the boast of the university that man's son. Is this laudable claim likey to be strengthened by special privileges being granted to the favored few? If one of our public school boards should set aside part of its support of the ratepayers? Surely the university can use its meagre resour ces to better advantage. This is not the time to have any division among the friends of the university. are many channels in which all tha means available to the authorities can be used, and which will meet with the approval of all the gradates. Some-thing should be done towards providing residence accommodation for all who attend the university. Much ha been done twoards providing such for for the men than is suggested by the present action? Had they not better take a lesson from the ladies?
